Is Communist China Real Threat to U.S.?

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Communist China really a threat to the United States? Should she be contained in Asia, and if so, does a policy of containment require absolute U.S. opposition to Communist regimes in Asia? These were the questions four speakers sought to answer Monday night at a symposium on "Containing China" in an effort to shed light on U.S. policy in Asia.

A U.S. senator criticized the United States for pursuing what he called a policy to isolate China.

A professor said Washington has become "obsessed" with the idea of containing China but doubted that she was as much of a threat as U.S. policymakers believed.

A former presidential consultant took issue with this view and said the United States has been more preoccupied with the expansion plans of the Soviet Union than those of Red China.

Another professor said that the problem of Chinese power is still remote but cautioned that the United States should preserve the status quo and "hold the line in Asia."

While the participants were generally critical of U.S. policy in Asia, they differed on what this policy is or should be. Nor was there any firm agreement on how seriously the United States should take the Chinese threat.

The symposium, sponsored by Commentary magazine, a monthly publication, was held at the Institute of Human Relations, and featured Sen. George McGovern, D-S-D; Bernard B. Fall, author on Viet Nam and professor of international relations at Howard University in Washington, D.C.; John P. Roche, political science professor at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass.; and Richard N. Goodwin, former special consultant to President John F. Kennedy and President John McGovern. "I think our greatest interest in Asia today is the prevention of a war with China. A military conflict between the United States and mainland China is the worst

3-Hour Space Walk Scheduled

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A spectacular flight plan has been drawn up for America's next Gemini space adventure calling for a "walk in space" of nearly three hours twice around the world and twice as long as most observers expected.

During his lengthy stroll, Gemini 8 astronaut David R. Scott will cling to the rear of the two-man capsule, looking like a man who almost missed his street car, while command pilot Neil A. Armstrong fires maneuvering rockets on the spacecraft to uncouple and couple with another satellite.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is now in the process of deciding whether the unmanned target will be an Agena rocket or a substitute satellite, called an Alternate Target Docking Adapter.

The space agency wanted to go with the Agena, but an Agena engine failed in a test chamber last Saturday and muddled plans. NASA has suspended further testing until a cause has been determined and corrected. Officials would prefer to use the Agena because it has a motor to maneuver it around, which the ATDA does not.

Whichever target is used, it will be launched by an Atlas rocket from a pad 6,000 feet away from Gemini launch complex 19 at Cape Kennedy. If it achieves a proper orbit, Air Force Maj. Scott and Armstrong, a civilian, will rocket into space about one hour and 40 minutes later.

The launch is expected to occur one month from today, March 15.

Scott and Armstrong plan to catch up with their target satellite on the fifth or sixth orbit, then slowly push the nose of Gemini 8 into a docking collar on the target satellite, firmly coupling the capsule to it. Both the Agena and ATDA have this collar.

If the Agena is used, the astronauts will use controls inside Gemini 8 to fire a small Agena propulsion unit. Delicate instruments will then measure the thrust the Agena provides.

On the morning of the second day, Scott is scheduled to get out of the capsule and maneuver his way to the rear. There, he will put on a special backpack with life-supporting oxygen bottles and other equipment inside.

After some maneuvering with a hand-held jet gun, the astronaut will cling to hand and foot grips on the rear of the spacecraft, sources said, while Armstrong fires small rockets on the spacecraft to back Gemini 8 away from its target satellite.

The astronauts then plan to fly in formation with the satellite — at a distance of 10 or 15 feet — with Scott "swimming" in space, taking pictures and possibly touching the satellite. The life-line connecting him to Gemini 8 will permit Scott to go up to 100 feet away.

Scott is expected to hang onto the rear of Gemini 8 again while Armstrong fires the spacecraft's maneuvering rockets to rendezvous and dock with the target satellite. Altogether, Scott will be outside the capsule about three hours.

Inside the capsule again, having left his backpack and life-line out in space, he and Armstrong will rendezvous and dock with the target vehicle five or six times, approaching from various angles and distances.

After 12 to 14 hours of experiments on the third day, the astronauts are to splash down in the Atlantic — completing a mission of nearly 72 hours.

200 Coeds Decry Campus Beards

COOKEVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — About 200 coeds at Tennessee Tech spent their Valentine's Day staging a protest against cultivation of beards by male students on the campus.

The mania ver fuzz began several weeks ago when the student government decided to sponsor a month-long beard-growing contest in observance of Tech's 50th anniversary.

Wearing long gowns and night caps and carrying banners and huge reproductions of safety razors, electric shavers and razor blades, the coeds made it clear that they are tired of it all.

W. R. Wallace Killed in Viet Nam War

Sgt. William Robert Wallace, 20, formerly of Circleville, has been killed in Viet Nam, according to word received here today.

Sgt. Wallace, son of Mrs. Mary K. (Pile) Wallace and the late Robert P. Wallace of Ft. Wayne, Ind., was on a search and destroy mission at the time of his death. He was serving with the U. S. Army.

He was born July 9, 1945, in Circleville and attended Circleville elementary schools. He was graduated in 1963 from Ft. Wayne Southside High School.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary K. Wallace and a brother, Richard Wallace, both of Ft. Wayne; paternal grandmother, Mrs. Harriett Wallace, 230 N. Court St., and an aunt, Martha V. Pile, Columbus.

Spinster, 77, Highly Rated As 'Paperboy'

BLANCHARD, Iowa (AP) — Miss Elva Bean is 77 years old and, say the people of Blanchard, the best "paper boy" the town ever had.

"What's more, she's an inspiration for the rest of us."

"We see Elva scurrying around and figure if she can do it, we can, too," says Annabelle Nuckolls, the town postmistress.

And Miss Bean?

She says: "I sure have a lot of fun. Besides, all this walking keeps my joints from creaking and getting stiff."

Miss Bean began delivering papers 10 years ago when, she says, "a nice young man mentioned he was unable to get youngsters interested in a newspaper job."

Now she delivers five different newspapers published in Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri and is, she says, "an interstate carrier because part of the town is in Iowa and part in Missouri."

Toledo Voters Given University Decision

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The City Council agreed Monday to put to the voter next May a proposal to convert the University of Toledo to a state institution.

Council also agreed to ask voters to end the 2-mill property tax that is collected by the university.

If voters approve state status for the university in May, the conversion is scheduled for July 1, 1967.

Bridge Replacement Viewed By Solons, Railroad Officials

Preliminary discussion on eventual replacement of a bridge on the Circleville-Tarleton Road was conducted today by Pickaway County's Board of Commissioners and representatives from the Norfolk & Western Railroad.

The bridge, which presently allows only one-lane traffic, is about one mile east of Route 23. The commission feels the often-repaired span should be replaced, and constructed to accommodate two lanes of traffic.

Pickaway County's side of the proposal was presented by Commissioners Lloyd Melvin, Charles Morris Jr. and Wayne Hines, along with County Engineer Henry McCrady and Prosecutor Robert H. Huffer and assistant Roger Bennington. William I. King, division engineer for the N&W at Portsmouth was chief spokesman for the railroad.

Both parties agreed Huffer and McCrady should prepare a formal proposal on the bridge replacement and submit it to the railroad.

THE COMMISSIONERS said the written request probably will concern cost sharing, building specifications and other requirements necessary to get the job done. Solon Charles Morris said he feels the railroad should provide all financing. However, King did not voice an accord with this comment.

In business completed Monday afternoon, the lawmakers approved a Pickaway Twp. plat submitted by Guy R. and Katherine S. Courtright. The area concerned is comprised of 3.735 acres subdivided into six lots.

New Cold Wave Envelops Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wintery weather, with snow and cold, hit areas from the Rocky Mountain region into the Midwest today, ending a spell of unseasonably mild temperatures in some sections.

Cold-wave warnings were posted for Montana east of the Continental Divide and temperatures dropped to below zero from Montana to Minnesota. Chilly weather extended eastward to the Appalachians.

Snow fell in the Rockies, across South Dakota to the Great Lakes region and in the upper Ohio Valley. Two inches of snow in a six-hour period gave Salt Lake City, Utah, a total of nine inches on the ground.

Additional Monday activity included a discussion on reducing load limits on certain roads in Perry Twp. The highways concerned are in the vicinity of the Deer Creek Reservoir which is now under construction.

The commissioners appointed Dr. Robert McCoy as Pickaway County Jail physician. Dr. H. H. Swope was named his assistant.

Pakistan, India To Receive Aid

Humphrey Gives American Pledge

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey arrived in Pakistan today with a promise that the United States will push its so far unsuccessful offensive to bring peace through negotiation to Viet Nam.

Humphrey flew 2,300 miles from Bangkok to Karachi after pledging bigger U.S. military aid to Thailand's leaders to cope with increasing Communist infiltration.

At Karachi airport, Humphrey told an audience: "My government has been and continues to be engaged in a most searching and intensive effort to bring about an honorable peace in Southeast Asia."

He hailed the Tashkent agreement last month in which Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan and the late Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India took a conciliatory approach to Kashmir and other Pakistani differences.

Humphrey's 22-hour visit may result in resumption of economic and possibly military aid which the U.S. government cut off last September when Pakistan and India went to war over Kashmir.

The vice president told a reporter food problems will be high on the list of topics to be discussed with Pakistani leaders today and with Indian leaders when he flies on to New Delhi Wednesday. Both nations are suffering severe food shortages because of drought.

In India, Humphrey said he will discuss plans for sending food for that country's starving millions. India reportedly hopes to get 19 million tons of U.S. wheat, but current prospects indicate the United States may not be able to furnish more than 12 million tons.

Veteran Solon Dies

Rural Poverty Is New Target

Self-Help Said Key to Attack

Planning Districts Due To Be Set Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government hopes to begin a new kind of federal attack on poverty this year. The target is rural America. The initial cost is low and the theme is self-help.

The vehicle for the new government program is the Rural Community Development Service, a planning agency authorized last year. President Johnson has asked Congress for 5 million to give the agency the go-ahead to begin operations in all 50 states.

The service's main goal is to set up hundreds of rural planning districts and provide the incentive for them to tackle the immediate and future problems in their areas on a local level.

Rural America has long withstood the government's antipoverty programs. Statistics show that its poverty rate is nearly twice that of the rest of the nation, its children lag two years behind urban dwellers in education and receive 33 per cent less medical attention. Twenty-five per cent of its nonfarm homes lack even running water.

As envisioned by Robert G. Lewis, administrator of the Rural Community Development Service, the new administration program would provide "a means whereby the rural and city people will be able to plan together and to achieve some things that no individual government unit is able to afford itself."

The proposed districts would be up to about 50 miles in diameter and generally correspond to the usual commercial patterns of a rural trading area — farms interspersed with many small and a few larger cities.

They would include representatives from all counties and city governments in their area.

Underlying much of the government's concern for the future of rural America has been the inability of small rural areas to help themselves to the funds available from the Office of Economic Opportunity, the administration's antipoverty agency.

The OEO's community action program has distributed less than 16 per cent of its funds to rural areas. Spokesmen said one reason is the lack of skilled public administrators in rural areas who could apply for the federal funds.

But Lewis said today in an interview the proposed program would go far beyond battling poverty.

"For one thing, we want to attract new industry," he said. "We're organizing a nationwide campaign to encourage businesses with expansion plans to locate in rural areas and to provide jobs for young people in rural areas without much training."

Lewis said some studies indicate as few as 1 of 10 farm boys can expect to make a living on the farm.

Fairborn Businessman Plans Write-in Drive

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — Myron Schwartz, 44, Fairborn businessman, announced today he will be a write-in candidate for the Democratic nomination in the 7th Congressional District in the May primary election.

No Democrat filed for the nomination in the district, but incumbent Republican Clarence Brown Jr. will have competition from H. Quinn Licklider of Springfield.

Panel Authorized To Gather Facts On Joint Airport

A more detailed look at prospects for creation of a joint Pickaway-Ross County airport has been scheduled.

Initial formation of a six-man subcommittee to study all aspects of a joint aviation facility was an outcome of a meeting Monday night involving the boards of commissioners and citizen airport groups from both counties. The panel will include three representatives from Pickaway and three from Ross.

The session, held in a conference room at the local Du Pont plant, was the second such meeting called to review possibilities of a joint airport venture. Commissioners from both counties, plus members of the Pickaway County Community Action Committee and Ross County Airport Committee participated.

Alden D. Bray, Du Pont manager here and head of the Pickaway Action group, presided. Also on hand to offer comments were Ross County Representative Myrl Shoemaker and Chillicothe Council President Sandy Metzger.

OBJECTIVES of the two-county subcommittee will be to explore details relative to availability of state and federal financial assistance, airport sites, legal aspects and other factors. Pickaway Commission Chairman Lloyd Melvin, with the consent of fellow solons Charles Morris Jr. and Wayne Hines, named Bray, D. E. Goodchild and John Dunlap to serve on the study panel. Pupils OK Beauty as Their Tutor

CICERO, Ill. (AP) — Danny Bucnis, 9, summed up what it's like to have a beauty queen for a teacher.

"Wow!" Danny is one of 23 fourth-graders at Roosevelt Elementary School who five days a week attend class taught by Miss Judy Piorkowski, 22, a green-eyed blonde named Miss Photoflash of 1966 by the Chicago Press Photographers Association.

The pupils all indicated agreement with the photographers' choice when Miss Piorkowski walked into her classroom Monday.

"Our teacher is beautiful," read a message on the blackboard. It was the work of Cindy Haiz, 9, who had come to school early so she could "do something nice" for her teacher.

A lacy pink valentine from Daphne Morton, 9, read: "To Miss Photoflash. You sure are lucky (sic) and pretty."

Other homemade red hearts proclaimed simply: "I love you."

Mark Zillhart, 9, told a reporter: "She's the prettiest teacher I ever had. She's nice, too. She's always strict but she's nice when she's strict, sort of."

Mark added: "She's pretty regular all the way around."

All the way around, Miss Piorkowski is 36-24-36, 5-feet-6 and 125 pounds.

sioners Alfred Immell, Emerson Brown and John Meeker said they would name their representatives within the next couple of days.

A feeling of cooperation in the venture was touched off by Metzger, speaking in behalf of the City of Chillicothe. He said a favorable attitude toward the

Rent Subsidy Guidelines Are Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional advocates of federal rent subsidies were hopeful today that new guidelines would enable them to win the money to get the program started.

President Johnson asked Congress Monday to include in a supplemental appropriations bill the full $30 million authorized for the first year of the subsidy program.

He first made the request last year but Congress declined to vote any of the $30 million although it had authorized that sum in the big 1965 housing bill passed earlier in the session.

At the time the funds were turned down, there were charges at the Capitol that the proposed regulations for the program would allow comparatively well-off families to get the benefit of the subsidies.

Since that time the new Housing and Urban Development Department has prepared revised guidelines to limit strictly the incomes and assets of potential beneficiaries.

For example, an elderly couple participating in the program would be restricted to assets of $5,000, other persons to $2,000.

Backers of the program said they believed these restrictions now should be enough to tip the scales in their favor.

Johnson said Monday the subsidies were "vital to our efforts to improve the quality of life in America."

The program is designed to help cities overcome shortages of decent housing for low-income families.

Central Blue Cross Plan Seen Aiding Medicare Patrons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Blue Cross of Central Ohio filed contract proposals with the Ohio Department of Insurance today that will greatly lower rates for Medicare beneficiaries.

First Medicare benefits, for persons 65 and older, will become available July 1.

All Blue Cross agencies except the Toledo office have now filed new contract proposals to cover those under Medicare.

The Central Ohio contract proposal calls for a monthly rate of about $2.60 for nongroup contract holders, a Blue Cross spokesman said. The current rate is $21.30 per quarter-year, or just over $7 a month.

The new Blue Cross contracts will supplement benefits provided by the federal program.

Boy, 5, Named 'Major' in Artillery Unit

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bouncy 5-year-old who is fighting leukemia is the newest trainee in a fighting man's unit, and he's starting at the top as a major.

He's Dickie Weber of Lansing, a blue-eyed, crew-cut blond who was awarded a major's gold oak leaf by the 4th Howitzer Battalion of the U.S. Army Reserve's 20th Artillery.

Dickie has worn his own Army uniform for more than a year. During that time he and doctors at University of Michigan Hospital have waged a grueling battle against his blood disease.

Effects of the disease are spreading throughout his active body and doctors rotate drugs to find a cure.

Sgt. 1. C. Samuel Hansel, a Boy Scouting friend of Dickie's dad, Richard Weber, learned about Dickie's red-hot Army interest and mentioned it last week to the 4th Howitzer Battalion commander, Maj. Charles Bragg. It was Bragg's idea to have the unit "adopt" Dickie.

Dickie was dressed in his uniform two hours before his first drill last Saturday.

At Sunday's closing formation, nearly 300 officers and men of the unit heard orders granting Dickie his major's commission.

"I don't get kisses anymore," observed his father. "Majors don't kiss their dads. It has to be a salute or handshake."

Next month the reserve unit will give blood in Dickie's name. He receives periodic injections and blood transfusions — sometimes under emergency conditions.

"He accepts the medication and the shots," says his mother. "Now he'll even tell the nurse which finger he wants pricked when he has a blood test."

Hospitalized several times last spring and summer, Dickie is strong enough now to put in a day at kindergarten.

Major Dickie jumps into a Jeep or gives snappy salutes to his new Army buddies.

His mother says, "If you didn't know, most of the time you wouldn't guess anything was wrong."

Goodwin: "The United States does have a China policy, but it's so sensitive we're not able to tell it to anybody."

"Probably it is true that policies like containment of China emerge out of conflict and experience and are not imposed on a situation in advance. There has not been the evolution of a consistent policy towards China in the period we're going through. In the main we do want to keep China from absorbing all of Asia."

VALENTINE'S Day just isn't for some couples . . . That's a conclusion drawn by at least one Roundtown.

It seems as though a friend talked the less romantic soul into buying his wife flowers and a card yesterday, something he had never done before . . . when he presented the "tokens of his esteem" to the wife she began to suspect something was wrong . . . Many area residents will remember Randhawa as a former exchange student who visited in Pickaway County in 1953 . . . He spent six weeks with three different farm families . . . They were the William Defenbaugh family in Saltcreek Twp., the Luther List family of Circleville Twp. and the Lewis Hill family of Darby Twp.

Mrs. Defenbaugh and her late husband attended the wedding of Randhawa in India in 1956 . . . And Mrs. Defenbaugh has kept in touch with the family since that time . . . She reports the Randhawas have five children.

He hailed the Tashkent agreement last month in which Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan and the late Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India took a conciliatory approach to Kashmir and other Pakistani differences.

Humphrey's 22-hour visit may result in resumption of economic and possibly military aid which the U.S. government cut off last September when Pakistan and India went to war over Kashmir.

The vice president told a reporter food problems will be high on the list of topics to be discussed with Pakistani leaders today and with Indian leaders when he flies on to New Delhi Wednesday. Both nations are suffering severe food shortages because of drought.

In India, Humphrey said he will discuss plans for sending food for that country's starving millions. India reportedly hopes to get 19 million tons of U.S. wheat, but current prospects indicate the United States may not be able to furnish more than 12 million tons.

Veteran Solon Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Albert Thomas, 67, veteran Democratic congressman from Texas, died today of cancer. He had been a member of the House of Representatives for 15 two-year terms beginning with the 75th Congress of 1937.

Rural Poverty Is New Target

Self-Help Said Key to Attack

Planning Districts Due To Be Set Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government hopes to begin a new kind of federal attack on poverty this year. The target is rural America. The initial cost is low and the theme is self-help.

The vehicle for the new government program is the Rural Community Development Service, a planning agency authorized last year. President Johnson has asked Congress for 5 million to give the agency the go-ahead to begin operations in all 50 states.

The service's main goal is to set up hundreds of rural planning districts and provide the incentive for them to tackle the immediate and future problems in their areas on a local level.

Rural America has long withstood the government's antipoverty programs. Statistics show that its poverty rate is nearly twice that of the rest of the nation, its children lag two years behind urban dwellers in education and receive 33 per cent less medical attention. Twenty-five per cent of its nonfarm homes lack even running water.

As envisioned by Robert G. Lewis, administrator of the Rural Community Development Service, the new administration program would provide "a means whereby the rural and city people will be able to plan together and to achieve some things that no individual government unit is able to afford itself."

The proposed districts would be up to about 50 miles in diameter and generally correspond to the usual commercial pattern of a rural trading area — farms interspersed with many small and a few larger cities.

They would include representatives from all counties and city governments in their area. Underlying much of the government's concern for the future of rural America has been the inability of small rural areas to help themselves to the funds available from the Office of Economic Opportunity, the administration's antipoverty agency.

The OEO's community action program has distributed less than 16 per cent of its funds to rural areas. Spokesmen said one reason is the lack of skilled public administrators in rural areas who could apply for the federal funds.

But Lewis said today in an interview the proposed program would go far beyond battling poverty.

"For one thing, we want to attract new industry," he said. "We're organizing a nationwide campaign to encourage businesses with expansion plans to locate in rural areas and to provide jobs for young people in rural areas without much training."

Lewis said some studies indicate as few as 1 of 10 farm boys can expect to make a living on the farm.

Fairborn Businessman Plans Write-in Drive

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — Myron Schwartz, 44, Fairborn businessman, announced today he will be a write-in candidate for the Democratic nomination in the 7th Congressional District in the May primary election.

No Democrat filed for the nomination in the district, but incumbent Republican Clarence Brown Jr. will have competition from H. Quinn Licklider of Springfield.

Panel Authorized To Gather Facts On Joint Airport

A more detailed look at prospects for creation of a joint Pickaway-Ross County airport has been scheduled.

Initial formation of a six-man subcommittee to study all aspects of a joint aviation facility was an outcome of a meeting Monday night involving the boards of commissioners and citizen airport groups from both counties. The panel will include three representatives from Pickaway and three from Ross.

The session, held in a conference room at the local Du Pont plant, was the second such meeting called to review possibilities of a joint airport venture. Commissioners from both counties, plus members of the Pickaway County Community Action Committee and Ross County Airport Committee participated.

Alden D. Bray, Du Pont manager here and head of the Pickaway Action group, presided. Also on hand to offer comments were Ross County Representative Myrl Shoemaker and Chillicothe Council President Sandy Metzger.

OBJECTIVES of the two-county subcommittee will be to explore details relative to availability of state and federal financial assistance, airport sites, legal aspects and other factors. Pickaway Commission Chairman Lloyd Melvin, with the consent of fellow solons Charles Morris Jr. and Wayne Hines, named Bray, D. E. Goodchild and John Dunlap to serve on the study panel. Ross Commis-

Pupils OK Beauty as Their Tutor

CICERO, Ill. (AP) — Danny Buernis, 9, summed up what it's like to have a beauty queen for a teacher.

"Wow!"

Danny is one of 23 fourth-graders at Roosevelt Elementary School who five days a week attend class taught by Miss Judy Piorkowski, 22, a green-eyed blonde named Miss Photoflash of 1966 by the Chicago Press Photographers Association.

The pupils all indicated agreement with the photographers' choice when Miss Piorkowski walked into her classroom Monday.

"Our teacher is beautiful," read a message on the blackboard. It was the work of Cindy Haiz, 9, who had come to school early so she could "do something nice" for her teacher.

A lacy pink valentine from Daphne Morton, 9, read: "To Miss Photoflash. You sure are lucky (sic) and pretty."

Other homemade red hearts proclaimed simply: "I love you."

Mark Zillhart, 9, told a reporter: "She's the prettiest teacher I ever had. She's nice, too. She's always strict but she's nice when she's strict, sort of."

Mark added: "She's pretty regular all the way around."

All the way around, Miss Piorkowski is 36-24-36, 5-feet-6 and 125 pounds.

sioners Alfred Immell, Emerson Brown and John Meeker said they would name their representatives within the next couple of days.

A feeling of cooperation in the venture was touched off by Metzger, speaking in behalf of the City of Chillicothe. He said a favorable attitude toward the

Rent Subsidy Guidelines Are Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional advocates of federal rent subsidies were hopeful today that new guidelines would enable them to win the money to get the program started.

President Johnson asked Congress Monday to include in a supplemental appropriations bill the full $30 million authorized for the first year of the subsidy program.

He first made the request last year but Congress declined to vote any of the $30 million although it had authorized that sum in the big 1965 housing bill passed earlier in the session.

At the time the funds were turned down, there were charges at the Capitol that the proposed regulations for the program would allow comparatively well-off families to get the benefit of the subsidies.

Since that time the new Housing and Urban Development Department has prepared revised guidelines to limit strictly the incomes and assets of potential beneficiaries.

For example, an elderly couple participating in the program would be restricted to assets of $5,000, other persons to $2,000.

Backers of the program said they believed these restrictions now should be enough to tip the scales in their favor.

Johnson said Monday the subsidies were "vital to our efforts to improve the quality of life in America."

The program is designed to help cities overcome shortages of decent housing for low-income families.

Central Blue Cross Plan Seen Aiding Medicare Patrons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Blue Cross of Central Ohio filed contract proposals with the Ohio Department of Insurance today that will greatly lower rates for Medicare beneficiaries.

First Medicare benefits, for persons 65 and older, will become available July 1.

All Blue Cross agencies except the Toledo office have now filed new contract proposals to cover those under Medicare.

The Central Ohio contract proposal calls for a monthly rate of about $2.60 for nongroup contract holders, a Blue Cross spokesman said. The current rate is $21.30 per quarter-year, or just over $7 a month.

The new Blue Cross contracts will supplement benefits provided by the federal program.

Boy, 5, Named 'Major' in Artillery Unit

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bouncy 5-year-old who is fighting leukemia is the newest trainee in a fighting man's unit, and he's starting at the top as a major.

He's Dickie Weber of Lansing, a blue-eyed, crew-cut blond who was awarded a major's gold oak leaf by the 4th Howitzer Battalion of the U.S. Army Reserve's 20th Artillery.

Dickie has worn his own Army uniform for more than a year. During that time he and doctors at University of Michigan Hospital have waged a groping battle against his blood disease.

Effects of the disease are spreading throughout his active body and doctors rotate drugs to find a cure.

Sgt. L. C. Samuel Hansel, a Boy Scouting friend of Dickie's dad, Richard Weber, learned about Dickie's red-hot Army interest and mentioned it last week to the 4th Howitzer Battalion commander, Maj. Charles Bragg. It was Bragg's idea to have the unit "adopt" Dickie.

Dickie was dressed in his uniform two hours before his first drill last Saturday.

At Sunday's closing formation, nearly 300 officers and men of the unit heard orders granting Dickie his major's commission.

"I don't get kisses anymore," observed his father. "Majors don't kiss their dads. It has to be a salute or handshake."

Next month the reserve unit will give blood in Dickie's name. He receives periodic injections and blood transfusions — sometimes under emergency conditions.

"He accepts the medication and the shots," says his mother. "Now he'll even tell the nurse which finger he wants pricked when he has a blood test."

Hospitalized several times last spring and summer, Dickie is strong enough now to put in a day at kindergarten.

Major Dickie jumps into a Jeep or gives snappy salutes to his new Army buddies.

His mother says, "If you didn't know, most of the time you wouldn't guess anything was wrong."

Seward Officially Named Regional Bus Coordinator

Robert Seward, Pickaway County school general supervisor, is one of four men named regional school bus coordinators by the State Board of Education.

Members of the Pickaway County Board of Education have indicated they will accept the resignation of Seward, to clear the way for him to assume new duties as regional school bus coordinator.

George McDowell, county superintendent, in reporting the board's decision stated he was "quite sorry that Mr. Seward is leaving and I would like for him to stay."

However, the superintendent pointed out it would mean an increase in salary for the local school official.

MCDOWELL said Seward's starting salary would be $9,450 per year, with increases of $450 after the first six months and first year on the job for a total of $10,350 after one year.

There would also be an additional amount to cover travel expenses.

Seward has been county supervisor for the last nine years. Prior to that he was executive head of Pickaway Twp. School.

He is a graduate of Ohio State University, holding both bachelor of science and a masters degrees.

As yet, the county board has not taken any action to replace Seward. McDowell indicated another qualified man would be employed before the beginning of a new school year.

Other coordinators named in clude Herman L. Massie, Laurelvil district superintendent; Robert S. Bingham, Ashland city schools business manager; and Roger C. Smith, Beaver-creek district buildings-ground supervisor.

The public hearing required before Ohio's new school bus law can be implemented will be on the day after Easter, strictly coincidental although religion figures in the bus picture.

The State Board of Education at Monday's meeting scheduled the hearing for April 11, since that's the day the board gathers in Columbus for its regular monthly meeting.

Controversy of the church-state separation variety still casts a shadow over the bus legislation calling for tax-supported transportation of parochial and private school pupils as well as those of public schools.

At least one suit seeking to declare the law unconstitutional is pending in court and the possibility exists of judicial intervention before start of the fall school term when required busing is to take effect.

At any rate the board received proposals for handling of the expanded bus service and voted to hire the first four of 30 regional coordinators who would direct the program.

Police Probe Three Entries

Circleville Police discovered three illegal entries at local firms during the night. Nothing was reported missing.

The firms were the Landmark Store, 312 W. Mound St., Litter Inc., 701 S. Pickaway St., and Celler Lumber Co., 766 S. Pickaway St.

At 11:36 p. m. Patrolmen Larry Pontious and Leonard Sines discovered a large plate glass window at the Landmark Store on W. Mound St. was broken. They said intruders apparently opened the cash register, then departed when they found no money.

The second entry discovered was at Litter's where a rear window was smashed with a field tile. Several drawers had been opened as well as the cash register.

The last entry at Celler Lumber as discovered by Sgt. Rodrick List. Although a window in a rear door was smashed, police reported it was undetermined if actual entry was gained.

Panel . . .

Both county groups agree that the acquisition of state funds and the selection of a likely site appear as major problems to be solved. The subpanel will attempt to come up with recommendations.

Considerable discussion centered on just how much money can be obtained from the state. Under a present program, each county may be granted up to $100,000. It has not been determined if the Pickaway-Ross proposal would be eligible for a $200,000 total, although it suggested that efforts be made to obtain this sum.

A factor drawing equal attention was the selection and acquisition of a site suitable to both counties. Guidelines to date have centered on acquiring an area near the county line and close to Route 23 — the main traffic artery connecting the two communities.

SPOKESMEN said no prime site has been suggested so far in Pickaway. However, the Ross Committee has considered several areas in its county, but apparently has not come up with a definite recommendation — partly because of the new proposal that includes Pickaway.

Both county commissions have indicated they are in favor of acquiring land through voluntary purchase arrangements, rather than by condemnation procedure provided through the right of eminent domain.

Bray urged all groups concerned to exercise as much speed as possible in the fact-finding department. He rated last night's conference a joint team effort that could produce worthwhile results.

'Gold Mine' of Water Exists In Scioto River Valley

There is a veritable gold mine of untapped ground water in the permeable sand and gravel in the Scioto River Valley, according to a report released by the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

Wells supplying Circleville and industries south of the city are currently utilizing this wealth of water.

The report describes the underground water potential of the Scioto Valley in non-technical terms. Titled "Ground Water for Industry in the Scioto River Valley", it is the result of a study by the ground-water geology section of the Division of Water.

Alfred Walker, principle author of the new report says "A potential yield of a billion and a half gallons per day is a conservative estimate of the ground water available from this area." This is fifty percent more than the amount of water used daily by all towns and cities in Ohio. He pointed out that these glacial outwash deposits form a huge underground reservoir. Already present and not requiring the purchase of large land areas, it would not take land out of its present use. The water would have a relatively constant low temperature and chemical quality.

Development of water supplies would cost a fraction of that for surface water sources. Pumping from these deposits would induce replenishment from the Scioto River, a factor which makes possible the tremendous yields.

The report is designed to present hydrogeologic data about this ground-water reservoir which will aid water engineers in planning water supplies for industry. This ready source of water plus other favorable conditions should ultimately result in important industrial development.

This is the first of a series of reports on similar water bearing formations in other of the State's larger river valleys according to C. V. Youngquist, chief of the Division of Water.

The report consisting of 29 pages of text, numerous illustrations including four large maps may be obtained at the Division of Water office, Room 815, Ohio Department Building, Columbus, Ohio 43215. The price is 50 cents per copy.

MAILING SESSION — Members of the patron committee of Berger Hospital's General Guild gathered at the home of Mrs. Ray Carroll, Circle Drive, to prepare ticket envelopes for prospective patrons of the upcoming talent-variety show. They are, clockwise, beginning at the left: Mrs. W. W. Story, Mrs. E. L. Montgomery, Mrs. Karl Seyfarth, Mrs. Carroll, Mrs. Luther Bower, Mrs. Lewis Young and Mrs. B. B. Deffenbaugh.

Ticket Envelopes Mailed For 'High Fever Follies'

Members of the patron committee for the Berger Hospital General Guild's production of "High Fever Follies" have been busy preparing and mailing letters to potential patrons of the show, scheduled for Mar. 17, 18 and 19.

With this phase of their work nearly completed, committee members noted that anyone who has not received a letter, may purchase patron tickets by contacting a member of the committee.

Mrs. Ray Carroll is serving as chairman of the group and she is assisted by Mrs. Lewis Young, Mrs. W. W. Story, Mrs. B. B. Deffenbaugh, Mrs. William H. Shockley, Mrs. E. L. Montgomery, Mrs. Luther Bower, Mrs. J. I. Smith, Jr. and Mrs. Karl Seyfarth.

Mrs. Carroll said that due to a program printing deadline of Feb. 25, that the tickets, which are reserved seats, should be purchased early. Patron tickets will be mailed to the recipients.

The committee also asks that patrons wishing to attend the show in a group should so specify in their return letter, so that they can be seated together.

Regular tickets will go on sale Mar. 1.

Proceeds from this show will be used for the benefit of Berger Hospital. Since 1964 the individual guilds have given equipment to the hospital totaling $2,567 and the same year, the General Guild was able to purchase a complete new hot food service at $3,000. Also in 1964, the $4,500 from the last Follies, plus other accumulated monies, were used to completely remodel and refurnish five rooms, giving the hospital 11 more patient beds. The cost of this was $9,250.49.

In 1965 the gifts were an operating room light, two emergency room lights, bed rails and a warming basin for surgery. This total came to $1,881.20.

As a result of their work and contributions in the last two years, Guild representatives have been invited to sit in on the Board of Governors' meetings.

U.S. spokesmen claimed that U.S. Air Force and Navy pilots operating over South Viet Nam smashed 425 Viet Cong buildings Monday and early today, hit three gun emplacements, sank 12 sampans and killed an estimated 30 Viet Cong. They reported 19 secondary explosions, presumably ammunition or fuel.

Allied Thrust Roots Out Foe

Red Units Forced From Hiding

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Allied drive against Viet Cong bastions around Bong Son and the An Lao Valley has driven several more Communist battalions out of hiding and inflicted heavy punishment on them, military spokesmen reported today.

U.S. and South Vietnamese forces claimed 316 more Viet Cong killed by infantry, artillery and air action, raising the total enemy dead reported in the big operation 300 miles north of Saigon to 1,611 since mid-January.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division, struck a Viet Cong company 12 miles southwest of Bong Son and killed 16. Troops scouring the area reported finding 100 bodies, victims of 12 passes Monday by two U.S. A-1 fighter-bombers which caught the Viet Cong in the open and hit them with rockets, bombs and cannon fire.

South Vietnamese paratroopers 20 miles north of Bong Son, on one flank of the operation area, hit a Viet Cong strongpoint of tunnels and trenches. U.S. artillery was called in, and a government spokesman said 200 enemy bodies were counted.

Government troops launched several operations in the Mekong Delta and claimed 110 Viet Cong killed and 6 captured in an hour-long battle 43 miles southwest of Saigon.

The U.S. Navy lost its first Swift patrol boat to a Viet Cong mine, and several of the six American crewmen were killed or injured.

The speedy patrol boat was sunk 250 yards off the southern coast in the Gulf of Thailand, 145 miles southwest of Saigon. Survivors picked up by a Vietnamese junk said the mine was detonated from the shore.

The squadron of 22 Swifts patrols the coastline constantly in search of Communist shipping carrying supplies to the Viet Cong.

U.S. spokesmen claimed that U.S. Air Force and Navy pilots operating over South Viet Nam smashed 425 Viet Cong buildings Monday and early today, hit three gun emplacements, sank 12 sampans and killed an estimated 30 Viet Cong. They reported 19 secondary explosions, presumably ammunition or fuel.

A heavy overcast continued to blanket North Viet Nam, forcing U.S. pilots to depend mostly on radar guidance. A spokesman said they bombed road, rail and water communications lines Monday in the southern part of the Communist North, concentrating on the routes to Laos and the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

MAILING SESSION — Members of the patron committee of Berger Hospital's General Guild gathered at the home of Mrs. Ray Carroll, Circle Drive, to prepare ticket envelopes for prospective patrons of the upcoming talent-variety show. They are, clockwise, beginning at the left: Mrs. W. W. Story, Mrs. E. L. Montgomery, Mrs. Karl Seyfarth, Mrs. Carroll, Mrs. Luther Bower, Mrs. Lewis Young and Mrs. B. B. Deffenbaugh.

Ticket Envelopes Mailed For 'High Fever Follies'

Members of the patron committee for the Berger Hospital General Guild's production of "High Fever Follies" have been busy preparing and mailing letters to potential patrons of the show, scheduled for Mar. 17, 18 and 19.

With this phase of their work nearly completed, committee members noted that anyone who has not received a letter, may purchase patron tickets by contacting a member of the committee.

Mrs. Ray Carroll is serving as chairman of the group and she is assisted by Mrs. Lewis Young, Mrs. W. W. Story, Mrs. B. B. Deffenbaugh, Mrs. William H. Shockey, Mrs. E. L. Montgomery, Mrs. Luther Bower, Mrs. J. I. Smith, Jr. and Mrs. Karl Seyfarth.

Mrs. Carroll said that due to a program printing deadline of Feb. 25, that the tickets, which are reserved seats, should be purchased early. Patron tickets will be mailed to the recipients.

The committee also asks that patrons wishing to attend the show in a group should so specify in their return letter, so that they can be seated together.

Regular tickets will go on sale Mar. 1.

Proceeds from this show will be used for the benefit of Berger Hospital. Since 1964 the income from the show has been used for the benefit of Berger Hospital.

Seward Officially Named Regional Bus Coordinator

Robert Seward, Pickaway County school general supervisor, is one of four men named regional school bus coordinators by the State Board of Education.

Members of the Pickaway County Board of Education have indicated they will accept the resignation of Seward, to clear the way for him to assume new duties as regional school bus coordinator.

George McDowell, county superintendent, in reporting the board's decision stated he was "quite sorry that Mr. Seward is leaving and I would like for him to stay."

However, the superintendent

pointed out it would mean an increase in salary for the local school official.

MCDOWELL said Seward's starting salary would be $9,450 per year, with increases of $450 after the first six months and first year on the job for a total of $10,350 after one year.

There would also be an additional amount to cover travel expenses.

Seward has been county supervisor for the last nine years. Prior to that he was executive head of Pickaway Twp. School.

He is a graduate of Ohio State University, holding both bachelor of science and a masters degree.

As yet, the county board has not taken any action to replace Seward. McDowell indicated another qualified man would be employed before the beginning of a new school year.

Other coordinators named include Herman L. Massie, Laurelville district superintendent; Robert S. Bingham, Ashland city schools business manager; and Roger C. Smith, Beaver-creek district buildings-grounds supervisor.

The public hearing required before Ohio's new school law can be implemented will be on the day after Easter, strictly coincidental although religious figures in the bus picture.

The State Board of Education at Monday's meeting scheduled the hearing for April 11, since that's the day the board gathers in Columbus for its regular monthly meeting.

Controversy of the church-state separation variety still casts a shadow over the bus legislation calling for tax-support of transportation of parochial and private school pupils as well as those of public schools.

At least one suit seeking to declare the law unconstitutional is pending in court and the possibility exists of judicial intervention before start of the fall school term when required busing is to take effect.

At any rate the board received proposals for handling of the expanded bus service and voted to hire the first four of 30 regional coordinators who would direct the program.

an alumni magazine, featured a story on OSU graduates who have been killed in the Vietnam war.

One of the graduates listed in the story was Capt. William J. Barthelmas Jr., who was killed last July when the plane he was piloting was downed.

Capt. Barthelmas, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Barthelmas, Route 2, was returning from an air strike against missile bases. He was a 1958 graduate of OSU's College of Agriculture.

An impressive ceremony is held once a month for the OSU war dead by the ROTC units. A bugler blows Taps in front of the Administration Building while all pedestrian and vehicular traffic on the OSU Oval comes to a standstill.

NO ONE was complaining today because the weatherman's "educated guess" concerning yesterday's forecast was off base. He predicted 1-3 inches of snow, but instead the Circleville area received 0.09 of an inch of rain.

Daytime highs for Tuesday and Wednesday are to be in the 40s, according to today's prediction.

MANY streets and highways were glazed with a thin coating of ice early today. Driving was hazardous, but no serious accidents were reported as a result of the slippery conditions.

Allied Thrust Roots Out Foe

Red Units Forced From Hiding

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Allied drive against Viet Cong bastions around Bong Son and the An Lao Valley has driven several more Communist battalions out of hiding and inflicted heavy punishment on them, military spokesmen reported today.

U.S. and South Vietnamese forces claimed 316 more Viet Cong killed by infantry, artillery and air action, raising the total enemy dead reported in the big operation 300 miles north of Saigon to 1,611 since mid-January.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile Division, struck a Viet Cong company 12 miles southwest of Bong Son and killed 16. Troops scouring the area reported finding 100 bodies, victims of 12 passes Monday by two U.S. A-1 fighter-bombers which caught the Viet Cong in the open and hit them with rockets, bombs and cannon fire.

South Vietnamese paratroopers 20 miles north of Bong Son, on one flank of the operation area, hit a Viet Cong strong-point of tunnels and trenches. U.S. artillery was called in, and a government spokesman said 200 enemy bodies were counted.

Government troops launched several operations in the Mekong Delta and claimed 110 Viet Cong killed and 6 captured in an hour-long battle 43 miles southwest of Saigon.

The U.S. Navy lost its first Swift patrol boat to a Viet Cong mine, and several of the six American crewmen were killed or injured.

The speedy patrol boat was sunk 250 yards off the southern coast in the Gulf of Thailand, 145 miles southwest of Saigon. Survivors picked up by a Vietnamese junk said the mine was detonated from the shore.

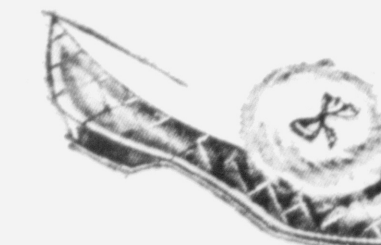

The squadron of 22 Swifts patrols the coastline constantly in search of Communist shipping carrying supplies to the Viet Cong.

Police Probe Three Entries

Circleville Police discovered three illegal entries at local firms during the night. Nothing was reported missing.

The firms were the Landmark Store, 312 W. Mound St., Litter Inc., 701 S. Pickaway St., and Cellar Lumber Co., 766 S. Pickaway St.

At 11:36 p. m. Patrolmen Larry Pontious and Leonard Sines discovered a large plate glass window at the Landmark Store on W. Mound St. was broken. They said intruders apparently opened the cash register, then departed when they found no money.

The second entry discovered was at Litter's where a rear window was smashed with a field tile. Several drawers had been opened as well as the cash register.

The last entry at Cellar Lumber as discovered by Sgt. Rodrick List. Although a window in a rear door was smashed, police reported it was undetermined if actual entry was gained.

joint effort seems to prevail in his community. Commissioner Morris noted that the same reflections have been evident in Pickaway.

Both county groups agree that the acquisition of state funds and the selection of a likely site appear as major problems to be solved. The subpanel will attempt to come up with recommendations.

Considerable discussion centered on just how much money can be obtained from the state. Under a present program, each county may be granted up to $100,000. It has not been determined if the Pickaway-Ross proposal would be eligible for a $200,000 total, although it suggested that efforts be made to obtain this sum.

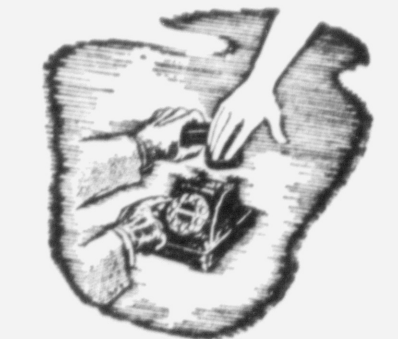

A factor drawing equal attention was the selection and acquisition of a site suitable to both counties. Guidelines to date have centered on acquiring an area near the county line and close to Route 23 — the main traffic artery connecting the two communities.

SPOKESMEN said no prime site has been suggested so far in Pickaway. However, the Ross Committee has considered several areas in its county, but apparently has not come up with a definite recommendation — partly because of the new proposal that includes Pickaway.

Both county commissions have indicated they are in favor of acquiring land through voluntary purchase arrangements, rather than by condemnation procedure provided through the right of eminent domain.

Bray urged all groups concerned to exercise as much speed as possible in the fact-finding department. He rated last night's conference a joint team effort that could produce worthwhile results.

'Gold Mine' of Water Exists In Scioto River Valley

There is a veritable gold mine of untapped ground water in the permeable sand and gravel in the Scioto River Valley, according to a report released by the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

Wells supplying Circleville and industries south of the city are currently utilizing this wealth of water.

The report describes the underground water potential of the Scioto Valley in non-technical terms. Titled "Ground Water for Industry in the Scioto River Valley", it is the result of a study by the ground-water geology section of the Division of Water.

Alfred Walker, principle author of the new report says "A potential yield of a billion and a half gallons per day is a conservative estimate of the ground water available from this area."

This is fifty percent more than the amount of water used daily by all towns and cities in Ohio. He pointed out that these glacial outwash deposits form a huge underground reservoir. Already present and not requiring the purchase of large land areas, it would not take land out of its present use. The water would have a relatively constant low temperature and chemical quality.

Development of water supplies would cost a fraction of that for surface water sources. Pumping from these deposits would induce replenishment from the Scioto River, a factor which makes possible the tremendous yields.

The report is designed to present hydrogeologic data about this ground-water reservoir which will aid water engineers in planning water supplies for industry. This ready source of water plus other favorable conditions should ultimately result in important industrial development.

This is the first of a series of reports on similar water bearing formations in other of the State's larger river valleys according to C. V. Youngquist, chief of the Division of Water.

Coin Demand Up; So Is Business

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans have more cold cash jingling in their pockets and stuffed in their billfolds than they did five years ago.

The business boom is only part of the answer for the proportionate increase.

The Federal Reserve Bank at Richmond, Va., part of the agency which distributes coins and paper money, has come up with some explanations. More teen-age spending, to name one, but most factors lack accurate measurement.

John K. Carlock, fiscal assistant secretary of the Treasury, said only theories can be advanced to explain the phenomenon and one theory is probably as good as another.

Hard cash makes up only about 20 per cent of the total money supply. The rest consists of time deposits, mainly checking accounts.

Here are some of the cold facts:

On June 30, 1960, the total currency in circulation was valued at $32.06 billion compared with $41.82 billion last Nov. 30, the most recent date for which Treasury figures are available. This represented a per capita jump from $17.47 to $213.79.

Treasury officials said the increase has nothing to do with any trend toward inflation, which is a much broader problem of production, supply and demand, over-all fiscal policy and a variety of other factors.

Two definite developments in the new pattern, the bank reported, are the increased demand for coins and an upturn in the business cycle.

The remaining possible causes, the bank added, are less measurable. It listed them as:

1. The demand for pocket money by the increasing number of teen-agers who hold jobs or receive allowances. The number of teen-agers between 15 and 19 increased by 3.5 million between 1960 and 1965—some 26 per cent above the increase for the previous five years.
2. Increased travel, both domestic and foreign, which prompts Americans to carry more ready cash than normal. The Chicago Federal Reserve Bank reported that although travelers' checks are widely used by travelers, most still find it convenient to carry more currency than they normally would at home.
3. Possible hoarding of American currency abroad to offset sometimes shaky currencies in emerging countries.
4. Internal Revenue Service policies, including a crackdown on federal gambling tax collections and use of computers to check income tax returns.
5. Strong and steady increases, especially since 1961, in personal income, savings and public holdings of liquid assets.

The rising use of credit cards and higher interest rate are factors in the opposite direction, the bank said, but pressures toward bigger holdings of hard cash were much stronger.

One Treasury spokesman summed up the whole situation in one word — affluence.

TODAY In History

1965 Home Accidents Show Percentage Rise

CHICAGO (AP) — Accidents in homes or public places took the lives of 47,500 persons last year — a rise of 2 per cent over 1964 — says the National Safety Council.

The figures, which do not include traffic and industrial fatalities, included 28,500 deaths in the home and 19,000 deaths in public places. The council said 40 per cent of the home fatalities were due to falls, with another 20 per cent due to burns and asphyxiation from fires.

Federal Auto Safety Plan Is Pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration will reportedly propose to Congress soon a five-year auto safety program to cost about $500 million. One provision would permit the government to set national standards for automobile safety.

One source says that the bill, now in the final drafting stage, would give the federal government for the first time a mandate in this area and have a "substantial, significant effect."

The program would begin during the fiscal year which starts July 1 but its major impact, at least moneywise, would be felt during the four fiscal years which begin July 1, 1967. Almost $500 million would be spent on the program during those four years, the source said.

The proposed bill would establish procedures for the secretary of commerce to fix minimum safety requirements for vehicles produced for domestic use and for imported cars, it was said.

These standards, however, would not be fixed until two years after the bill became law to give the industry time to move on its own. If the secretary then decided that federal action was still needed, he could promulgate national safety standards.

One provision reported would provide $3 million the first year to plan a center for research and development of safety features that would minimize accidents, and injuries.

GI Composer Sets Up Fund For Kiddies

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Staff Sgt. Barry Allen Sadler, reaping royalties from his song about the U.S. special forces, isn't forgetting the children of his buddies who didn't return home from Viet Nam.

Sadler has established an educational foundation for the children of deceased special forces men with part of the royalties on "The Ballad of the Green Berets."

More than 700,000 copies of the record already have been sold and he is in demand for special appearances across the nation.

Sadler, 25, is a Viet Nam veteran. A native of Carlsbad, N.M., he supports his wife and 13-month-old son largely on his Army pay. A special forces spokesman said a staff sergeant received about $271 a month plus allowances.

The song is a sentimental tribute to the special forces men trained at Ft. Bragg's John F. Kennedy Special Warfare Center. The outfit's trademark is the green beret.

The World Today

By SPENCER DAVIS
For James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's assurances of support to Thailand's leadership underscores the deep U.S. concern for an area hand-picked by Peking for subversion — the northeast plateau on the Mekong River border with Laos.

It is an area of Thailand where living standards are lower, crops less plentiful and the livelihood for its 10 million much more difficult than in the rest of the country.

It is a region where the United States says that Communist China is directly instigating and supporting a movement designed to overthrow the existing government.

In a speech on U.S.-China policy last weekend Assistant Secretary of State William P. Bundy said the Peking strategy is to replace the present government with a regime responsive to Peking's will.

"This is what we are seeing today in the form of a so-called Thai Patriotic Front established and supported from mainland China," Bundy said. "This is the direct form of Communist Chinese tactic that must be met."

Means of meeting the threat through concerted economic and military action are reflected in the American bases and supply depots and the expanded aid effort being made in the northeast.

In November 1964, Peking announced the formation of a Thai independence movement intended to spark a war of national liberation. In January 1965, a second group called the Thai Patriotic Front was formed.

The headquarters of both organizations seemed to spring out of a clandestine radio operating from the Mekong River border region in Communist-held northern Laos. Last November, the two groups combined. Their purpose: to depose the royal government, abolish treaties with the United States, oust U.S. troops from Thailand, encourage agricultural production and distribute land to the peasants.

Foreign Minister Chen Yi of Red China had predicted there would be a liberation war in Thailand by the end of 1965.

This timetable was upset. But U.S. expert analysts found evidence last fall that Peking ordered an intensification of the struggle through terrorist activity in northeast Thailand.

The bombing of North Viet Nam and steadily increasing numbers of American troops refugees still living in northeast Thailand.

Government experts here do not believe that the situation has yet reached the stage where the Communists can mount a Viet Nam-type war in Thailand. But a lot will depend upon how effective the Thais continue to be in carrying out economic and social improvement programs.

This is the area where President Johnson has now pledged Bangkok additional resources to fight hunger, disease and poverty.

Coin Demand Up; So Is Business

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans have more cold cash jingling in their pockets and stuffed in their billfolds than they did five years ago.

The business boom is only part of the answer for the proportionate increase.

The Federal Reserve Bank at Richmond, Va., part of the agency which distributes coins and paper money, has come up with some explanations. More teen-age spending, to name one, but most factors lack accurate measurement.

John K. Carlock, fiscal assistant secretary of the Treasury, said only theories can be advanced to explain the phenomenon and one theory is probably as good as another.

Hard cash makes up only about 20 per cent of the total money supply. The rest consists of time deposits, mainly checking accounts.

Here are some of the cold facts:

On June 30, 1960, the total currency in circulation was valued at $32.06 billion compared with $41.82 billion last Nov. 30, the most recent date for which Treasury figures are available. This represented a per capita jump from $177.47 to $213.79.

Treasury officials said the increase has nothing to do with any trend toward inflation, which is a much broader problem of production, supply and demand, over-all fiscal policy and a variety of other factors.

Two definite developments in the new pattern, the bank reported, are the increased demand for coins and an upturn in the business cycle.

The remaining possible causes, the bank added, are less measurable. It listed them as:

1. The demand for pocket money by the increasing number of teen-agers who hold jobs or receive allowances. The number of teen-agers between 15 and 19 increased by 3.5 million between 1960 and 1965—some 26 per cent above the increase for the previous five years.
2. Increased travel, both domestic and foreign, which prompts Americans to carry more ready cash than normal. The Chicago Federal Reserve Bank reported that although travelers checks are widely used by travelers, most still find it convenient to carry more currency than they normally would at home.
3. Possible hoarding of American currency abroad to offset sometimes shaky currencies in emerging countries.
4. Internal Revenue Service policies, including a crackdown on federal gambling tax collections and use of computers to check income tax returns.

"Persons who were evading the gambling and income taxes may have been sufficiently impressed by these two policies to switch to a currency basis for conducting their business rather than depositing their funds in banks," the bank said.

5. Strong and steady increases, especially since 1961, in personal income, savings and public holdings of liquid assets.

The rising use of credit cards and higher interest rate are factors in the opposite direction, the bank said, but pressures toward bigger holdings of hard cash were much stronger.

One Treasury spokesman summed up the whole situation in one word — affluence.

Solon Seeks To Outlaw Both Boxing, Wrestling

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Sen. John F. McNamara Jr. has introduced bills in the Rhode Island Legislature that would outlaw professional boxing and wrestling matches in the state.

Asked to comment on the measures, McNamara, a Pawtucket Democrat, said: "I think that boxing as a sport is finished and wrestling as a sport has been dead for 20 years."

Outdoor Club To Meet

The regular meeting of the Pickaway Farmer and Sportsmen Assn. will be held 8 p. m. Thursday in the 4-H and Grange Building at the Pickaway Fairgrounds.

Federal Auto Safety Plan Is Pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration will reportedly propose to Congress soon a five-year auto safety program to cost about $500 million. One provision would permit the government to set national standards for automobile safety.

One source says that the bill, now in the final drafting stage, would give the federal government for the first time a mandate in this area and have a "substantial, significant effect."

The program would begin during the fiscal year which starts July 1 but its major impetus, at least moneywise, would be felt during the four fiscal years which begin July 1, 1967. Almost $500 million would be spent on the program during those four years, the source said.

The proposed bill would establish procedures for the secretary of commerce to fix minimum safety requirements for vehicles produced for domestic use and for imported cars, it was said.

These standards, however, would not be fixed until two years after the bill became law to give the industry time to move on its own. If the secretary then decided that federal action was still needed, he could promulgate national safety standards.

One provision reported would provide $3 million the first year to plan a center for research and development of safety features that would minimize accidents, and injuries.

The Worriers

Tension from anxiety being very much a national weakness, the results of some psychiatric studies along this line are interesting. They reveal that when your body is keyed up for action, the condition of blood vessels, muscles and other parts changes.

If you persist in keying yourself up in this way to prepare for possible action, the result is anxiety. And anxiety is contagious. No matter how much you attempt to conceal it, the tone of your voice and your gestures will start others worrying. The worriers often try to compensate by overindulgence in eating, drinking or smoking.

Anxiety in daily life, these studies indicate, can be controlled only through discussing and sharing problems with others. Talking about your own worries is essential so that efforts may be combined to relieve the cause of worry.

That's very intriguing but suppose you unload your worries on somebody else and that confidant starts worrying too. Then there would be two worriers instead of one. Perhaps too many worriers have spilled their virus until the bloodstream of the nation is affected.

Sharp Secretaries

Can a girl with a college degree find happiness as a secretary?

The answer is yes in an increasing number of instances. A booming market for college-educated lasses with secretarial training is reported coast-to-coast.

And what about the girl with a bachelor's or master's degree who lacks specialized education? Well, despite all the talk about the need for higher education to get ahead, she simply has little which qualifies her to become a part of the workaday world unless she has specialized.

An anticipated annual demand for 100,000 secretaries a year is greater than the average demand for female college graduates without specialized training.

The moral for the college girl who isn't sure where she's going: Take some courses in typing and shorthand.

Who is in a better position than a secretary to take her pick of the eligible office males — or maybe even marry the boss?

13 Million Search for Sleep

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Although many people complain modern life is a big fat yawn, some 13 million Americans each night find it difficult to go to sleep. About six million solve the problem by taking sleeping pills or capsules.

The flight from the kitchen is gaining headway. Half the employed married women say they took jobs because of some degree of financial necessity, but the three out of four also say they'd rather work than spend all their time at home.

The U.S. Air Force is considering putting traces of zinc in food issued to airmen in combat areas. It is reported to speed the healing of wounds.

Auto accidents cost an average of $195 for each American family last year. In the last 25 years, an insurance survey found, car accidents took a toll of 905,564 lives and an economic toll of more than $130 billion.

Remember when most cities sneered at how sooty Pittsburgh was? And joked at the smog in Los Angeles? Well, they all have air pollution problems now. In Manhattan 80 tons of soot and other forms of dirt now fall on each square mile of the borough each month.

Quotable notables: "A man properly must pay the fiddler. In my case it so happened that a whole symphony orchestra had to be subsidized" — John Barrymore.

Facts about the poor: Poverty afflicts 36 per cent of all households headed by men and containing five or more children. But it hits 92 per cent of all families headed by women and having the same number of children.

New and interesting: Science is working on a blood pressure drug made from octopuses. A motor car has about 35 pounds of plastic. Researchers are working on a new technique to speed the recovery of stroke victims by providing them with more oxygen.

Delmonico's restaurant in 1834 is said to have printed the first menu in America. Among the prices: cup of tea or coffee, one cent; bowl of soup two cents; hash, three cents; half a pie, two cents; beef steak, four cents; roast chicken, 10 cents; regular dinner, 12 cents. Presumably the toothpicks were free.

Worth remembering: "If you don't learn from your mistakes, there's no sense making them."

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — The government is busily gathering data this week on how industry is faring in the middle of February and this time the task isn't as dull as you might think.

The findings to be released in about a month will mark an anniversary — and maybe give a clue to what's ahead for both industry and your job.

The many statistics that government agencies are collecting and sorting just now will show how business was faring at the end of five years of almost uninterrupted expansion. It was the data gathered in February 1961 that have since proved to have marked the low point of the last recession and the start of the long upswing that has set a record for peacetime.

The pulse-taking this February also may give some clues as to whether the peacetime prosperity is taking on the first tinges of a wartime boom — minor as the Viet Nam war still is in comparison with its predecessors.

That the government agencies will find most of the U.S. economy still on the upswing in February is pretty much taken for granted. The momentum of the big spurt in the final weeks of 1960 has carried over into the first weeks of 1961.

And almost daily leaders of one industry after another are issuing predictions that 1961 now looks better even than it did a few months back.

Steel executives are revising upward their guesses on how much their mills will be called upon to produce to keep the business expansion going and to meet the rising demand for consumer durables.

Auto makers also are saying now that sales this year might top last year's record mark of 9.3 million cars, including imports.

February often is a slow month, a low point in production and sales. Government statisticians will take that into account in releasing the figures now being gathered. This is known as making a seasonal adjustment. Allowance is made for the historic trend in each industry in each month, whether it be usually a time for boom or, like February, usually a time for decline.

But that U.S. industry will look healthier this February than last is as sure now as anything can be before the figures are taken, adjusted and released. That it will be better than any February in the last five years also is expected.

The questions to be answered: How much better? And is it just enough better as to suggest that the business growth is continuing at a healthy pace? Or will maladjustments be found?

The real test for the economy's health probably will come with the spring months, when consumers will or won't be turning their present intentions into actual purchases.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

MILTON BERLE told the panel of "What's My Line" backstage one Sunday evening that at the conclusion of the show he was going to a tavern down the block and ask the bartender for a Mermaid. "A mermaid," averred Arlene Francis, "is a myth." "Lithen," snapped Berle, "did I atk if she wath married?"

Inadequate water supply was an irksome problem for Arizonians even before the spectacular population boom in that state in the past two decades. Early in the nineteen twenties an Arizona senator rose to point out that with water his state would become a veritable paradise. A churlish senator across the aisle added spitefully, "That's all Hell needs, too."

Oscar Levant tells of an amusing impasse that he had with no less a personage than the redoubtable Maestro Toscanini. Levant had been engaged to play the Gershwin Concerto with Toscanini's NBC Symphony, and found himself at odds with the Maestro on the interpretation of a few passages. Of course the Maestro had his way. When the disgruntled Levant pointed out, "Gershwin wanted it the way I played it," Toscanini calmly answered, "That's poor boy! He was a sick!"

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Every generation seems to pride itself in the belief that they have lived through a special age of anxiety. Actually the age of anxiety is as long as the age of man.

Children are born unafraid. But from the moment they enter society, forces are set in motion that initiate their first feelings of fear. The complicated emotional experience of their parents soon begins to leave telltale marks on the sensitive emotional structure of the child.

Every waking moment every activity is completely controlled and carefully planned by the parents. Even though a sense of protection and security is shown to the child, there creeps into this attitude a sense of fear.

Fears are not deliberately planted by parents, yet they blossom on the nutritious soil of childhood. The fears of infancy are the seedlings that become full blown adult neuroses.

The overanxious parent sometimes bombards the child with phrases such as, "Don't eat that, it will make you sick"; "don't get wet, you'll get sick"; "wear your rubbers, you'll catch cold." Under the guise of kind, paternal supervision, fears can be transferred.

The great desire to keep a child from harm by such overprotection can leave lasting effects.

Children learn to respect physical harm by trial and error. They soon know that it hurts to fall and quickly learn to protect themselves.

The recovery from physical hurt is a rapid one. The recovery from emotional fears may be more complicated.

Not long ago, a child was brought to my office for examination. At the age of five, the relationship between the child and the doctor can be a very warm one. I was impressed by a tremendous reaction to any gesture of kindness that I made. The child seemed to be unapproachable. The reason came to light when I learned that the child had grown up with the doctor used as a threat of punishment for any misbehavior.

The policeman and the doctor had been the weapons used to instill fear. Such a thoughtless pattern had continued in one form or another from the time the child could understand the meanings of such threats.

The groundwork had already been laid for mistrust and anxiety, which eventually will affect him in maturity.

It is almost impossible to avoid all emotional injury in the young, sensitive child. It takes concentrated effort.

Security and fear cannot live side-by-side. When the child is given the secure feeling of love, devotion and protection, in addition to definite limits of behavior, he flourishes.

When limits are established for children their security becomes greater.

If children are to be given the heritage of freedom from fear, parents must seek it and nourish it within themselves.

Senate Showdown on Excise?

By John Chamberlain

The Senatorial filibuster against repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act has served to dampen speculation on other matters pending in Congress. But there are premonitory rumbles to the effect that Lyndon Johnson may encounter some stiff opposition in his attempt to have his way on more than one item in his requests for 1966 and 1967.

For one thing, a storm seems to be blowing up over the question of restoring the excise taxes which were cut amid such a huzzahing last year. The tip-off on this is the skepticism expressed by Democratic Senator Vance Hartke of Indiana about the common sense of shifting ground on a tax theory that has already been proved out in practice. What was good in 1965, says Hartke, ought to be good in 1966. The justification for cutting both the income tax and excise taxes was that it would create an affluence that would increase the total tax take of the government. This is what has happened. It could be, of course, that the demands of the Vietnamese War will ultimately make it imperative to cut down on the production of such civilian items as automobiles, handbags, and improvements in telephone service. But the Administration, in its outlines for a guns-plus-butter economy, obviously has no such cutback in mind.

Hartke has voiced a fear that you can't impose tax increases in a guns-plus-butter situation without causing that anomalous thing, a depression in the midst of a supposed war boom. To put it concretely, people might stop buying automobiles while the government goes on buying guns. Since it is the automobile sales that, figuratively speaking, have been paying for the guns, anything that hits Detroit must also hit the Pentagon. If this should happen, the government would have to abandon what economist Elliot Janeway calls the "selective sacrifice" philosophy involved in the excise tax restoration in favor of imposing war taxes across the board. And there would probably have to be price and wage controls in order to make the after-tax income of the American people equal to the job of keeping the economy functioning.

Senator Hartke presumably feels strongly about excise taxes because he led the Senate in forcing their repeal. On his recent trip to Asia, Hartke happened to see a graveyard of smashed Patton tanks in India. The Indian government told him that these were Pakistani Pattons, gifts of America, that had been knocked out by inferior World War II Sherman and British Centurion tanks and recoilless rifles in the hands of the Indian army. On pursuing the matter further, Hartke discovered that Washington had sent the Pattons to Pakistan with the understanding that they were for defense against Communists. The cream of the Indian jest was that nobody had bothered to teach the Pakistanis how to deploy the tanks tactically in the field. So they were wasted in a use for which they had not been sent to Pakistan in the first place. The broken Pattons seemed symbolic to Hartke of the whole course of "foreign military assistance."

To relate this to the matter of the excise tax, Hartke might very well decide that the Administration can substitute a cut in useless foreign military aid for the proposed restoration of the excise. The sums involved would amount roughly to the same figure. Hartke also thinks that there might be some "intelligently selective cuts" in such things as the appropriations for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Hartke is, of course, merely one Senator among a hundred. But he happens to be a leader in a newly emergent bloc of Senators that is resenting "consensus" imposed without asking its advice. The recent "sixteen-Senator letter" asking restraint on Vietnam bombing may not have been helpful to a harassed President who is stuck with a war that continues to be unavoidable. But it served notice that the Senate cannot be counted on to remain docile about a lot of things that the President may want. The Senate, as one close observer has said, has become a fluid body again, and how its future patterns will jell is unforeseeable.

The Worriers

Tension from anxiety being very much a national weakness, the results of some psychiatric studies along this line are interesting. They reveal that when your body is keyed up for action, the condition of blood vessels, muscles and other parts changes.

If you persist in keying yourself up in this way to prepare for possible action, the result is anxiety. And anxiety is contagious. No matter how much you attempt to conceal it, the tone of your voice and your gestures will start others worrying. The worriers often try to compensate by overindulgence in eating, drinking or smoking.

Anxiety in daily life, these studies indicate, can be controlled only through discussing and sharing problems with others. Talking about your own worries is essential so that efforts may be combined to relieve the cause of worry.

That's very intriguing but suppose you unload your worries on somebody else and that confidant starts worrying too. Then there would be two worriers instead of one. Perhaps too many worriers have spilled their virus until the bloodstream of the nation is affected.

Sharp Secretaries

Can a girl with a college degree find happiness as a secretary?

The answer is yes in an increasing number of instances. A booming market for college-educated lasses with secretarial training is reported coast-to-coast.

And what about the girl with a bachelor's or master's degree who lacks specialized education? Well, despite all the talk about the need for higher education to get ahead, she simply has little which qualifies her to become a part of the workaday world unless she has specialized.

An anticipated annual demand for 100,000 secretaries a year is greater than the average demand for female college graduates without specialized training.

The moral for the college girl who isn't sure where she's going: Take some courses in typing and shorthand.

Who is in a better position than a secretary to take her pick of the eligible office males — or maybe even marry the boss?

13 Million Search for Sleep

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Although many people complain modern life is a big fat yawn, some 13 million Americans each night find it difficult to go to sleep. About six million solve the problem by taking sleeping pills or capsules.

The flight from the kitchen is gaining headway. Half the employed married women say they took jobs because of some degree of financial necessity, but the three out of four also say they'd rather work than spend all their time at home.

The U.S. Air Force is considering putting traces of zinc in food issued to airmen in combat areas. It is reported to speed the healing of wounds.

Auto accidents cost an average of $195 for each American family last year. In the last 25 years, an insurance survey found, car accidents took a toll of 905,564 lives and an economic toll of more than $130 billion.

Remember when most cities sneered at how sooty Pittsburgh was? And joked at the smog in Los Angeles? Well, they all have air pollution problems now. In Manhattan 80 tons of soot and other forms of dirt now fall on each square mile of the borough each month.

Quotable notables: "A man properly must pay the fiddler. In my case it so happened that a whole symphony orchestra had to be subsidized" — John Barrymore.

Facts about the poor: Poverty afflicts 36 per cent of all households headed by men and containing five or more children. But it hits 92 per cent of all

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — The government is busily gathering data this week on how industry is faring in the middle of February and this time the task isn't as dull as you might think.

The findings to be released in about a month will mark an anniversary — and maybe give a clue to what's ahead for both industry and your job.

The many statistics that government agencies are collecting and sorting just now will show how business was faring at the end of five years of almost uninterrupted expansion. It was the data gathered in February 1961 that have since proved to have marked the low point of the last recession and the start of the long upswing that has set a record for peacetime.

The pulse-taking this February also may give some clues as to whether the peacetime prosperity is taking on the first tinges of a wartime boom — minor as the Viet Nam war still is in comparison with its predecessors.

That the government agencies will find most of the U.S. economy still on the upswing in February is pretty much taken for granted. The momentum of the big spurt in the final weeks of 1965 has carried over into the first weeks of 1966.

And almost daily leaders of one industry after another are issuing predictions that 1966 now looks better even than it did a few months back.

Steel executives are revising upward their guesses on how much their mills will be called upon to produce to keep the business expansion going and to meet the rising demand for consumer durables.

Auto makers also are saying now that sales this year might top last year's record mark of 9.3 million cars, including imports.

February often is a slow month, a low point in production and sales. Government statisticians will take that into account in releasing the figures now being gathered. This is known as making a seasonal adjustment. Allowance is made for the historic trend in each industry in each month, whether it be usually a time for boom or, like February, usually a time for decline.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

MILTON BERLE told the panel of "What's My Line" backstage one Sunday evening that at the conclusion of the show he was going to a tavern down the block and ask the bartender for a Mermaid. "A mermaid," averred Arlene Francis, "is a myth." "Lithen," snapped Berle, "did I atk if she wath married?"

Inadequate water supply was an irksome problem for Arizonians even before the spectacular population boom in that state in the past two decades. Early in the nineteen twenties an Arizona senator rose to point out that with water his state would become a veritable paradise. A churlish senator across the aisle added spitefully, "That's all Hell needs, too."

Oscar Levant tells of an amusing impasse that he had with no less a personage than the redoubtable Maestro Toscanini. Levant had been engaged to play the Gershwin Concerto with Toscanini's NBC Symphony, and found himself at odds with the Maestro on the interpretation of a few passages. Of course the Maestro had his way. When the disgruntled Levant pointed out, "Gershwin wanted it the way I played it," Toscanini calmly answered, "Thata poor boy! He was a-sick!"

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Every generation seems to pride itself in the belief that they have lived through a special age of anxiety. Actually the age of anxiety is as long as the age of man.

Children are born unafraid. But from the moment they enter society, forces are set in motion that initiate their first feelings of fear. The complicated emotional experience of their parents soon begins to leave telltale marks on the sensitive emotional structure of the child.

Every waking moment every activity is completely controlled and carefully planned by the parents. Even though a sense of protection and security is shown to the child, there creeps into this attitude a sense of fear.

Fears are not deliberately planted by parents, yet they blossom on the nutritious soil of childhood. The fears of infancy are the seedlings that become full blown adult neuroses.

The overanxious parent sometimes bombards the child with phrases such as, "Don't eat that, it will make you sick"; "don't get wet, you'll get sick"; "wear your rubbers, you'll catch cold." Under the guise of kind, paternal supervision, fears can be transferred.

The great desire to keep a child from harm by such over-protection can leave lasting effects.

Children learn to respect physical harm by trial and error. They soon know that it hurts to fall and quickly learn to protect themselves.

The recovery from physical hurt is a rapid one. The recovery from emotional fears may be more complicated.

Not long ago, a child was brought to my office for examination. At the age of five, the relationship between the child and the doctor can be a very warm one. I was impressed by

Senate Showdown on Excise? By John Chamberlain

The Senatorial filibuster against repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act has served to dampen speculation on other matters pending in Congress. But there are premonitory rumbles to the effect that Lyndon Johnson may encounter some stiff opposition in his attempt to have his way on more than one item in his requests for 1966 and 1967.

For one thing, a storm seems to be blowing up over the question of restoring the excise taxes which were cut amid such a huzzabing last year. The tip-off on this is the skepticism expressed by Democratic Senator Vance Hartke of Indiana about the common sense of shifting ground on a tax theory that has already been proved out in practice. What was good in 1965, says Hartke, ought to be good in 1966. The justification for cutting both the income tax and excise taxes was that it would create an affluence that would increase the total tax take of the government. This is what has happened. It could be, of course, that the demands of the Vietnamese War will ultimately make it imperative to cut down on the production of such civilian items as automobiles, handbags, and improvements in telephone service. But the Administration, in its outlines for a guns-plus-butter economy, obviously has no such cutback in mind.

Hartke has voiced a fear that you can't impose tax increases in a guns-plus-butter situation without causing that anomalous thing, a depression in the midst of a supposed war boom. To put it concretely, people might stop buying automobiles while the government goes on buying guns. Since it is the automobile sales that, figuratively speaking, have been paying for the guns, anything that hits Detroit must also hit the Pentagon. If this should happen, the government would have to abandon what economist Eliot Janeway calls the "selective sacrifice" philosophy involved in the excise tax restoration in favor of imposing war taxes across the board. And there would probably have to be price and wage controls in order to make the after-tax income of the American people equal to the job of keeping the economy functioning.

Senator Hartke presumably feels strongly about excise taxes because he led the Senate in forcing their repeal. On his recent trip to Asia, Hartke happened to see a graveyard of smashed Patton tanks in India. The Indian government told him that these were Pakistani Pattons, gifts of America, that had been knocked out by inferior World War II Sherman and British Centurion tanks and recoilless rifles in the hands of the Indian army. On pursuing the matter further, Hartke discovered that Washington had sent the Pattons to Pakistan with the understanding that they were for defense against Communists. The cream of the ironic jest was that nobody had bothered to teach the Pakistanis how to deploy the tanks tactically in the field. So they were wasted in a use for which they had not been sent to Pakistan

HEART SUNDAY IS FEB. 20!

Heart Sunday Chairman Named for Local Effort

Mrs. Robert Huffer, 960 S. Pickaway St., and Mrs. Terry Barthelmas, 119 Park St., have been named chairmen of the local 1966 Heart Sunday canvass.

The appointment was made by O. Charles Hosterman, Heart Fund campaign chairman for Pickaway County. He noted that Heart Sunday will be observed here and in 8500 communities throughout the country on Feb. 20.

Other appointments made by Hosterman included Miss Ann Short, Route 3, a chairman of the rural solicitation on Sunday. Miss Lois Brobst was named chairman of balloon sales that were conducted last weekend by members of the SOS Club of Circleville High School. Mrs. George Myers was appointed secretary and David Hoffman was named treasurer of the local effort.

Hosterman noted that volunteers will visit local homes on Sunday to distribute information about the program of the Heart Assn. and to receive contributions to the heart fund.

HE ADDED that it may become necessary for volunteers to call on homes on days other than Sunday because of weather conditions.

In a combined statement today, Mrs. Huffer and Mrs. Barthelmas pointed out that the Central Ohio Heart Assn. with which the Pickaway County Heart Assn. is affiliated has awarded over $1.5 million since 1950 to cardiovascular research at research centers in the central Ohio area.

Copter Unit Flies 7,634 Sorties, Loses No Men

JOHNSON CITY, South Viet Nam (AP) — You won't find it on a map but a wooden sign attached to a makeshift control tower says:

"Johnson City International. Elevation 40 feet. MAG 36."

MAG 36 is Marine Air Group 36, a bunch of helicopter pilots. Daily they face Viet Cong bullets to lift troops and supplies to the front lines and to evacuate the wounded. They take part in many other missions too.

Johnson City became a reality when thousands of Marine infantrymen made an amphibious assault south of Quang Ngai City and established a beachhead off the South China Sea in support of Operation Double Eagle.

Johnson City actually is the headquarters for the task force, but the hub of activity is a strip of sand 3,600 feet long and 1,000 feet wide. That's where 75 helicopters supporting the operation work from — blowing up a sand storm when they take off or land.

The strip of sand is named after Col. William G. Johnson, 45, commander of MAG 36.

During the first week of its operation, around 21 helicopters were hit by enemy ground fire, Johnson said.

"We've had two shot down, and we've recovered them both," he added. "I've had no men seriously wounded. I've been very lucky."

A typical example of the perils the helicopters face is a mission involving Capt. Russell Randall, 27, of San Francisco; his crew chief, Sgt. Marvin N. Treadway of Evanston, Wyo.; and the machine gunner, Cpl. Graden M. Thompson of Waycross, Ga.

"We saw a man get hit on our approach to the landing zone to retract some troops," Randall recalled. "We knew the zone was under fire before we started in. We were about 50 feet from the man who got hit. You could see him lying there."

"I pointed him out to the crew chief and asked him if he could get him back to the aircraft. Treadway and Thompson went out to him under fire and determined a stretcher would be needed. Thompson came back for the stretcher while Treadway administered first aid."

"They crawled back with the stretcher between them. Rounds were hitting around the aircraft, but none hit it."

The pilots and crew members put in long hours, starting at dawn and finishing up well after dark. During the first 11 days of Operation Double Eagle, they flew 525 missions and 7,634 sorties. They carried 9,952 troops and 384 tons of cargo.

Preparations Continue for BIE Day Here

Preparation for next month's Business - Industry - Education Day advanced another notch Monday when members of the Area Chamber of Commerce Education Committee met at Tink's for a luncheon session.

Alden D. Bray, committee chairman, announced that 59 local business, industry and professional establishments have expressed willingness to participate in the Mar. 29 event. In the spotlight will be city and county high school seniors who will be guests of the firms during the day.

Bray said latest reports from the four high schools here indicate an excellent participation on the part of students. He also commended the many firms that have agreed to serve as hosts.

Part of yesterday's session was devoted to matching student names with particular firms they wish to visit. Nearly 500 seniors are expected to take part in the program.

THE CHAMBER Education Committee also is in the process of preparing a career guidance directory as a separate project. Once prepared, copies will be made available to city and county school officials and teachers.

The committee currently is seeking additional listings in various trades, businesses and professions in order to come up with as complete a directory as possible.

Bray urged members of his panel to make contacts with personnel associated with categories presently not listed.

Man Bound to Jury
In Death of Infant

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A man accused of slaying a young boy and dumping the body in an outhouse on an abandoned farm near Monroe, Mich., has been bound over to the Lucas County Grand Jury.

The grand jury was to meet Wednesday to discuss the case of Alberto Sanchez, 22, charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of Eddie Montalvo, 2, last Nov. 29.

Montalvo was the son of a woman with whom Sanchez had been living.

Sanchez appeared in court for a preliminary hearing Monday.

One of the four, 2nd Lt. Edward Spinaio of Venice, Calif., presented a captured Viet Cong flag to the students.

"I would like to say that this support is welcomed by our troops in Viet Nam and we are sorry they could not be here with us to enjoy the hospitality and moral support of the students," 1st Lt. William Hill of Kenosha, Wis., told the rally.

The students donated 200 pints of blood to the armed services in the name of the four officers.

The four arrived at the campus Friday and were feted at a round of fraternity and sorority parties. They also dated campus queens.

The two other officers were 2nd Lt. Ken Carey, Green Cove Springs, Fla., and 1st Lt. Orville Hengen, Rapid City, S.D.

Viet Veterans Cheered at Mass Rally

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The University of Florida's "Operation Appreciation" wound up Monday night with a mass rally cheering four young combat officers of the Viet Nam conflict.

The four men made brief remarks in the university auditorium as about 10 demonstrators handed out leaflets in protest of the war. The audience gave the soldiers a three-minute ovation.

Nigeria Seems 'Normal' Month after Revolution

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Life has returned to what passes for normal in Africa's most populous nation a month after the military revolution.

Nigerians discuss the new policies of the military governor, Maj. Gen. J. T. U. Aguiyi-Ironsi, while sipping palm wine between glances at "The Flintstones" and "Wrestling from Chicago" on television.

Traffic clogs the narrow, odoriferous streets in this seaside capital. Soccer games draw capacity crowds and Nigerian youths garbed in traditional British whites play cricket on the infield of the Lagos race track.

Few troops are seen. The police, who seemed to disappear during the uprising, have again taken up their duties. Trade union leaders who led two general strikes in three years are prominent.

Trading stalls vending everything from auto parts to individual cigarettes are open from early morning to far into the night. Formidable "market mummies" run these businesses and trading usually is conducted in high-pitched haggling with much arm waving.

Prices of staple foodstuffs like rice and plantains increased after the revolt but were rolled back under army orders. Market mummies complain Nigerians wearing "military looking uniforms" demand free food.

Roadblocks inside the cities have been lifted, and garishly painted "mammy wagons" career through streets scattering pedestrians and bicyclists.

Mammy wagons are basic transport here. They are trucks fitted with wooden bodies designed to carry passengers, freight and livestock, usually at the same time.

Wife-Slayer Is Sent To Lima State Hospital

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Charles Callahan, 41, LeSourdsville has been committed to Lima State Hospital after being sentenced to a one to 20-year prison term for the slaying of his wife.

Mrs. Pauline Callahan, 33, was shot to death last July and Callahan was convicted Nov. 19 in common pleas court. Judge Fred B. Cramer sentenced him Monday but suspended the sentence and ordered Callahan committed to the hospital.

Nurse Recruitment Due To Be Stepped Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stepped up recruitment of both male and female nurses for the military services has been ordered by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

McNamara said the order was made at the request of the Pentagon, which has estimated that 4,500 additional nurses are needed because of the military build-up in Viet Nam.

Neighbors Shun Phone. Holler Across Street

YORKVILLE, Ind. (AP) — When the Rev. Charles Walsh wants to talk to neighbor Henry Alhaus, he finds it faster to open a window than use the telephone.

Telephones used by Father Walsh, pastor of St. Martin's church, and Alhaus, who lives across the street, are operated by different companies.

Establishing telephone communication between the two involves a long-distance call over 35 miles of telephone lines.

HEART SUNDAY IS FEB. 20!

Heart Sunday Chairman Named for Local Effort

Mrs. Robert Huffer, 960 S. Pickaway St., and Mrs. Terry Barthelmas, 119 Park St., have been named chairmen of the local 1966 Heart Sunday canvass.

The appointment was made by O. Charles Hosterman, Heart Fund campaign chairman for Pickaway County. He noted that Heart Sunday will be observed here and in 8500 communities throughout the country on Feb. 20.

Other appointments made by Hosterman included Miss Ann Short, Route 3, a chairman of the rural solicitation on Sunday. Miss Lois Brobst was named chairman of balloon sales that were conducted last weekend by members of the SOS Club of Circleville High School. Mrs. George Myers was appointed secretary and David Hoffman was named treasurer of the local effort.

Hosterman noted that volunteers will visit local homes on Sunday to distribute information about the program of the Heart Assn. and to receive contributions to the heart fund.

HE ADDED that it may become necessary for volunteers to call on homes on days other than Sunday because of weather conditions.

In a combined statement today, Mrs. Huffer and Mrs. Barthelmas pointed out that the Central Ohio Heart Assn. with which the Pickaway County Heart Assn. is affiliated has awarded over $1.5 million since 1950 to cardiovascular research at research centers in the central Ohio area.

Copter Unit Flies 7,634 Sorties, Loses No Men

JOHNSON CITY, South Viet Nam (AP) — You won't find it on a map but a wooden sign attached to a makeshift control tower says:

"Johnson City International. Elevation 40 feet. MAG 36."

MAG 36 is Marine Air Group 36, a bunch of helicopter pilots. Daily they face Viet Cong bullets to lift troops and supplies to the front lines and to evacuate the wounded. They take part in many other missions too.

Johnson City became a reality when thousands of Marine infantrymen made an amphibious assault south of Quang Ngai City and established a beachhead off the South China Sea in support of Operation Double Eagle.

Johnson City actually is the headquarters for the task force, but the hub of activity is a strip of sand 3,600 feet long and 1,000 feet wide. That's where 75 helicopters supporting the operation work from — blowing up a sand storm when they take off or land.

The strip of sand is named after Col. William G. Johnson, 45, commander of MAG 36.

During the first week of its operation, around 21 helicopters were hit by enemy ground fire, Johnson said.

"We've had two shot down, and we've recovered them both," he added. "I've had no men seriously wounded. I've been very lucky."

A typical example of the perils the helicopters face is a mission involving Capt. Russell Randall, 27, of San Francisco; his crew chief, Sgt. Marvin N. Treadway of Evanston, Wyo.; and the machine gunner, Cpl. Graden M. Thompson of Waycross, Ga.

"We saw a man get hit on our approach to the landing zone to retract some troops," Randall recalled. "We knew the zone was under fire before we started in. We were about 50 feet from the man who got hit. You could see him lying there."

"I pointed him out to the crew chief and asked him if he could get him back to the aircraft. Treadway and Thompson went out to him under fire and determined a stretcher would be needed. Thompson came back for the stretcher while Treadway administered first aid."

"They crawled back with the stretcher between them. Rounds were hitting around the aircraft, but none hit it."

The pilots and crew members put in long hours, starting at dawn and finishing up well after dark. During the first 11 days of Operation Double Eagle, they flew 525 missions and 7,634 sorties. They carried 9,952 troops and 384 tons of cargo.

Preparations Continue for BIE Day Here

Preparation for next month's Business - Industry - Education Day advanced another notch Monday when members of the Area Chamber of Commerce Education Committee met at Tink's for a luncheon session.

Alden D. Bray, committee chairman, announced that 59 local business, industry and professional establishments have expressed willingness to participate in the Mar. 29 event. In the spotlight will be city and county high school seniors who will be guests of the firms during the day.

Bray said latest reports from the four high schools here indicate an excellent participation on the part of students. He also commended the many firms that have agreed to serve as hosts.

Part of yesterday's session was devoted to matching student names with particular firms they wish to visit. Nearly 500 seniors are expected to take part in the program.

THE CHAMBER Education Committee also is in the process of preparing a career guidance directory as a separate project. Once prepared, copies will be made available to city and county school officials and teachers.

The committee currently is seeking additional listings in various trades, businesses and professions in order to come up with as complete a directory as possible.

Bray urged members of his panel to make contacts with personnel associated with categories presently not listed.

Man Bound to Jury In Death of Infant

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A man accused of slaying a young boy and dumping the body in an outhouse on an abandoned farm near Monroe, Mich., has been bound over to the Lucas County Grand Jury.

The grand jury was to meet Wednesday to discuss the case of Alberto Sanchez, 22, charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of Eddie Montalvo, 2, last Nov. 29.

Montalvo was the son of a woman with whom Sanchez had been living.

Sanchez appeared in court for a preliminary hearing Monday

Nigeria Seems 'Normal' Month after Revolution

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Life has returned to what passes for normal in Africa's most populous nation a month after the military revolution.

Few troops are seen. The police, who seemed to disappear during the uprising, have again taken up their duties. Trade union leaders who led two general strikes in three years are promoting industrial peace.

Many civil servants have adopted a smug and righteous attitude since the army ousted ministers and most political appointees.

Trading stalls vending everything from auto parts to individual cigarettes are open from early morning to far into the night. Formidable "market mummies" run these businesses and trading usually is conducted in high-pitched haggling with much arm waving.

Prices of staple foodstuffs like rice and plantains increased after the revolt but were rolled back under army orders. Market mummies complain Nigerians wearing "military looking uniforms" demand free food.

Roadblocks inside the cities have been lifted, and garishly painted "mammy wagons" caressed through streets scattering pedestrians and bicyclists.

Mammy wagons are basic transport here. They are trucks fitted with wooden bodies designed to carry passengers, freight and livestock, usually a the same time.

Village petitions for "pipe-borne water and other amenities" are now sent to military authorities instead of politicians.

Nigerian newspapers, most of the shrill political organs before the coup, now use much space praising the military regime.

Mail is no longer opened for inspection as it was for a week after the revolt. But the government cable office exercises strict censorship on news dispatches. All references to tribalism or corruption in the old government are deleted. Only flattering descriptions of the military rulers are accepted. (This story was airtailed.)

Photographs of slain Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa and President Nnamdi Azikiwe — who remains in London — have been removed from government and private buildings.

Miss Stevenson, Mr. Scott Are United in Marriage

MRS. DONALD E. SCOTT

Miss Nancy Elaine Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stevenson, Route 3, and Mr. Donald Eugene Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Scott, Route 1, St. Paris, O., exchanged wedding vows 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the First Methodist Church, E. Main St.

The Rev. Paul L. Wachs performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with two seven branch candelabra, baskets of white gladioli, mums and huckleberry. The pews were marked with white satin bows.

Mrs. John Barney was organist and Mrs. Maynard Hite, sister of the bridegroom, was vocalist for the program of nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white chantilly lace and crepe fashioned with an empire sheath silhouette featuring long pointed sleeves and a scalloped neckline studded with crystal and seed pearls. The mantle train flowed chapel length. A queen's crown of crystal and seed pearls held her elbow length veil of imported illusion and she carried a white orchid surrounded by stephanotis and shattered white carnations.

Mrs. Richard Hix, Grove City, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were, Miss Cary Sue Bock, Miss Betty Jo Hougendobler and Mrs. Jeannie Evans. They wore matching dresses of crepe each designed with a dark turquoise empire bodice bordered with ruffles enhanced with an oval neckline and elbow length sleeves. Their floor length sheath skirts were of light turquoise. Matching Dior bows held their butterfly veils and each carried a single long stemmed rose.

Debbie and Cindy Hite were flower girls. They wore turquoise dresses. Matching Dior bows held their butterfly veils and they carried white lace baskets.

Mr. Dale Scott served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Mr. Maynard Hite, Mr. Richard Hix and Mr. Fred Evans.

Mrs. Stevenson chose for her daughter's wedding a sheath dress of dark turquoise crepe with a matching lace bodice. The bridegroom's mother wore a two piece lame' dress. Each wore a corsage of rose colored cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church social room. The bride's table was centered with a four tiered wedding cake topped with a cluster of white wedding bells. The cake and punch bowl were surrounded by snowdrift pompons and huckleberry. Hostesses were, Miss Judy Burton, Miss Sandra Bachelor, Miss Barbara Mitchell, Miss Christine Jones, Mrs. James Wells and Mrs. Frederick Overly. Miss Judy Huston presided at the guest register.

For a going-away costume the bride wore a rose-pink two piece knit suit with black accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The new Mrs. Scott will continue her schooling as a senior student at Riverside School of Nursing, Columbus.

Mr. Scott attended Ohio State University and served one year in the Armed Forces. He is presently engaged in farming.

The couple resides at Route 1, St. Paris.

St. Patrick's Day Dinner Plans Listed

Plans for a St. Patrick's Day Dinner were made during a recent meeting of the Altar-Rosary Society of St. Joseph's Church.

Mrs. Charles Green, vice president, presided during the business session. The annual roast beef dinner will be served to the public Mar. 19 in the church basement.

Among the coming events discussed by the group were a rummage sale to be held early in May and the annual Summer Festival, which has been set for June 15. Members of the society were invited to attend an Inter-Faith Tea to begin 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Temple Israel, Columbus. The Columbus Diocesan Council of Catholic Women are assisting with arrangements for the tea.

It was announced that the society will participate in a World Day of Prayer in the Church of the Brethren, Pickaway and Logan Sts. Mrs. Robert Monarski will represent the church on the program for the session.

Following the business meeting the group enjoyed a white elephant sale. Mrs. Margaret Shadley received the door prize for the evening and Msgr. Joseph McGlynn, pastor of the church, was honored on his birthday.

During the social hour refreshments were served by officers of the group, including Mrs. Green, Mrs. John Lake, secretary, and Mrs. Edwin Dean, treasurer.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

He's Too Friendly!

DEAR ABBY: I am not even sure how to put this, but it has been bothering me for a long time and it's come to the point where I have to do something about it. I have a girl friend. She is 15 (so am I) and we are always over at each other's houses. When I first met her father, I thought he was neat because he was so friendly. But he got to doing things I knew weren't right. Like putting his hands on me, and trying to kiss me. He never did this in front of anyone else. I tried to avoid him, but he'd send his daughter out of the room to get something for him. I pretended I thought his actions were all in fun, but deep down I was scared to death. I hate to quit seeing my friend, and if I tell my mother about this she will have his scalp. What should I do?

DEAR SCARED: Don't worry about the old man's scalp. Tell your mother. If he's sick, he needs treatment. If he's just a dirty old man, he shouldn't be allowed to run around loose.

DEAR ABBY: We have belonged to a bridge club for several years and we meet at each other's homes. When this certain couple has the game, it's as though they didn't know anyone was expected. They are in faded jeans, their children are eating in "shifts," and the house is a mess. They make us feel as though we intruded on them.

Card Party Is Scheduled

Members of FOE Auxiliary No. 685 met in the Aerie Home, E. Main St. Sharon Pino was initiated into membership.

Plans were made to hold a card party Mar. 9 in the basement of the Aerie Home. Proceeds will go to the Cancer Fund, Max Baer Heart Fund and the Girl School Project of Ohio.

It was also agreed to help the Aerie with their supper for members and guests Feb. 19.

The next meeting will be 8 p.m. Thursday.

Guild To Meet Today

Berger Hospital Guild No. 40 will meet 8:30 p.m. today in the home of Mrs. Thomas Bergen, Route 3.

A nominating committee will be selected to name a slate of officers to be elected at the March meeting.

Now these are educated people, from the best families. I admit they are both expert bridge players and good company, but what about cleaning up the place and presenting a more gracious picture? Or isn't this important when you have a diploma from Dartmouth and one from Radcliffe?

DISGUSTED
DEAR DISGUSTED: Aw, relax. You can go "slumming" now and then, can't you? Your friends may be poor housekeepers, relaxed parents, and casual, non-conforming hosts, but they're friends, aren't they?

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee and have been for over a year. I have two children, 5 and 3. I go out with a very nice gentleman once or twice a week, and he always insists on paying my babysitter. I live on a limited budget and this man makes good money. A friend of mine told me that allowing my escort to pay my sitter is no different than accepting money from him. I never looked at it that way. I'd appreciate your views.

YOUNG MOTHER
DEAR YOUNG: I disagree with your friend. Under the circumstances, I see nothing wrong with allowing your escort to pay your sitter.

Mrs. Ankrom Hostess for Circle Meet

Circle No. 1 of the First EUB Church met in the home of Mrs. George Ankrom, 131 Hayward Ave.

Mrs. Howard Conley, leader, presented Scripture. Reports were given by various officers. Brotherhood was stressed for the week of Feb. 20 as this is brotherhood month. The World Day of Prayer will be held Feb. 25.

Mrs. Edwin Richardson was program leader for the evening. A Bible study was given. Mrs. Robert McNeely used as her topic, "Set Apart for a Purpose." Readings were also given by Mrs. Russell Jones, Mrs. John Kerns, Mrs. Bertha Gildersleeve. Scripture was read for each topic. A question and answer period was conducted for members. Hazel Merz offered the closing prayer.

The meeting next month will be held in the home of Mrs. C. O. Kerns and Mrs. John Kerns.

Miss Flanders, Mr. Sims Are Engaged

MISS PATRICIA FLANDERS

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Flanders, 117 Lancaster Pike, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Jeanne to Mr. Gerald Nolan Sims, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Sims Jr., 120 W. High St.

Miss Stevenson, Mr. Scott Are United in Marriage

MRS. DONALD E. SCOTT

Miss Nancy Elaine Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stevenson, Route 3, and Mr. Donald Eugene Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Scott, Route 1, St. Paris, O., exchanged wedding vows 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the First Methodist Church, E. Main St.

The Rev. Paul I. Wachs performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with two seven branch candelabra, baskets of white gladioli, mums and huckleberry. The pews were marked with white satin bows.

Mrs. John Barney was organist and Mrs. Maynard Hite, sister of the bridegroom, was vocalist for the program of nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white chantilly lace and crepe fashioned with an empire sheath silhouette featuring long pointed sleeves and a scalloped neckline studded with crystal and seed pearls. The mantle train flowed chapel length. A queen's crown of crystal and seed pearls held her elbow length veil of imported illusion and she carried a white orchid surrounded by stephanotis and shattered white carnations.

Mrs. Richard Hix, Grove City, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were, Miss Cary Sue Bock, Miss Betty Jo Hougendobler and Mrs. Jeannie Evans. They wore matching dresses of crepe each designed with a dark turquoise empire bodice bordered with ruffles enhanced with an oval neckline and elbow length sleeves. Their floor length sheath skirts were of light turquoise. Matching Dior bows held their butterfly veils and each carried a single long stemmed rose.

Debbie and Cindy Hite were flower girls. They wore turquoise dresses. Matching Dior bows held their butterfly veils and they carried white lace baskets.

Mr. Dale Scott served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Mr. Maynard Hite, Mr. Richard Hix and Mr. Fred Evans.

Mrs. Stevenson chose for her daughter's wedding a sheath dress of dark turquoise crepe with a matching lace bodice. The bridegroom's mother wore a two piece lame dress. Each wore a corsage of rose colored cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church social room. The bride's table was centered with a four tiered wedding cake topped with a cluster of white wedding bells. The cake and punch bowl were surrounded by snowdrift pompons and huckleberry. Hostesses were, Miss Judy Burton, Miss Sandra Bachelor, Miss Barbara Mitchell, Miss Christine Jones, Mrs. James Wells and Mrs. Frederick Overly. Miss Judy Huston presided at the guest register.

For a going-away costume the bride wore a rose-pink two piece knit suit with black accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The new Mrs. Scott will continue her schooling as a senior student at Riverside School of Nursing, Columbus.

Mr. Scott attended Ohio State University and served one year in the Armed Forces. He is presently engaged in farm-work. The couple resides at Route 1, St. Paris.

St. Patrick's Day Dinner Plans Listed

Plans for a St. Patrick's Day Dinner were made during a recent meeting of the Altar-Rosary Society of St. Joseph's Church.

Mrs. Charles Green, vice president, presided during the business session. The annual roast beef dinner will be served to the public Mar. 19 in the church basement.

Among the coming events discussed by the group were a rummage sale to be held early in May and the annual Summer Festival, which has been set for June 15. Members of the society were invited to attend an Inter-Faith Tea to begin 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Temple Israel, Columbus. The Columbus Diocesan Council of Catholic Women are assisting with arrangements for the tea.

It was announced that the society will participate in a World Day of Prayer in the Church of the Brethren, Pickaway and Logan Sts. Mrs. Robert Monarski will represent the church on the program for the session.

Following the business meeting the group enjoyed a white elephant sale. Mrs. Margaret Shadley received the door prize for the evening and Msgr. Joseph McGlynn, pastor of the church, was honored on his birthday.

During the social hour refreshments were served by officers of the group, including Mrs. Green, Mrs. John Lake, secretary, and Mrs. Edwin Dean, treasurer.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren He's Too Friendly!

DEAR ABBY: I am not even sure how to put this, but it has been bothering me for a long time and it's come to me that where I have to do something about it. I have a girl friend. She is 15 (so am I) and we are always over at each other's houses. When I first met her father, I thought he was neat because he was so friendly. But he got to doing things I knew weren't right. Like putting his hands on me, and trying to kiss me. He never did this in front of anyone else. I tried to avoid him, but he'd send his daughter out of the room to get something for him. I pretended I thought his actions were all in fun, but deep down I was scared to death. I hate to quit seeing my friend, and if I tell my mother about this she will have his scalp. What should I do?

SCARED

DEAR SCARED: Don't worry about the old man's scalp. Tell your mother. If he's sick, he needs treatment. If he's just a dirty old man, he shouldn't be allowed to run around loose.

DEAR ABBY: We have belonged to a bridge club for several years and we meet at each other's homes. When this certain couple has the game, it's as though they didn't know anyone was expected. They are in faded jeans, their children are eating in "shifts," and the house is a mess. They make us feel as though we intruded on them.

YOUNG MOTHER

DEAR YOUNG: I disagree with your friend. Under the circumstances, I see nothing wrong with allowing your escort to pay your sitter.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee and have been for over a year. I have two children, 5 and 3. I go out with a very nice gentleman once or twice a week, and he always insists on paying my babysitter. I live on a limited budget and this man makes good money. A friend of mine told me that allowing my escort to pay my sitter is no different than accepting money from him. I never looked at it that way. I'd appreciate your views.

Hostess for Circle Meet

Circle No. 1 of the First EUB Church met in the home of Mrs. George Ankrom, 131 Hayward Ave.

Mrs. Howard Conley, leader, presented Scripture. Reports were given by various officers. Brotherhood was stressed for the week of Feb. 20 as this is brotherhood month. The World Day of Prayer will be held Feb. 25.

Mrs. Edwin Richardson was program leader for the evening. A Bible study was given. Mrs. Robert McNeley used as her topic, "Set Apart for a Purpose." Readings were also given by Mrs. Russell Jones, Mrs. John Kerns, Mrs. Bertha Gildersleeve. Scripture was read for each topic. A question and answer period was conducted for members. Hazel Merz offered the closing prayer.

The meeting next month will be held in the home of Mrs. C. O. Kerns and Mrs. John Kerns.

Cage Freeze Fails To Halt Blue Devils

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

South Carolina gave Duke the cold shoulder on Valentine's night but it didn't break the Blue Devils' hearts this time.

The Gamecocks, who had stunned second-ranked Duke last December, tried a freeze at Durham, N.C., that must have had Dan Cupid shivering Monday night but the Blue Devils hung on for a 41-38 Atlantic Coast Conference victory.

Duke, with high-scorer Bob Verga sitting out his second straight game for disciplinary reasons, shot into a 29-20 lead with a minute gone in the second half when South Carolina put on the stall.

The Gamecocks' slowdown and some erratic shooting by Verga narrowed the lead to 34-31 with 4½ minutes to play. But Steve Gacendak hit two long jumpers and Jack Marin sank three free throws that kept the Blue Devils on top.

"We couldn't run with them," reasoned South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire, defending his freeze. "It was our one chance."

South Carolina's slowdown looked like a fast break compared to the iceberg Midwestern and LeTourneau Tech, two small Texas schools, exchanged.

Midwestern scored the first two baskets of the game and it was 4-2 when LeTourneau, which had lost 82-56 the first time the two teams met, went into a stall with 16:50 left in the first half. Midwestern led 7-6 at the half.

The teams each managed one basket in the second half with the first points coming after 13½ minutes of stalling. The final score was Midwestern 9, LeTourneau 8 and the best news came after the final gun.

The two schools decided they won't play each other anymore.

The nation's top six teams in The Associated Press poll all played and won with Duke and third-ranked Texas Western getting the closest calls. The Miners edged Arizona State 69-67 despite 30 points by the losers' Freddie Lewis.

Top-ranked Kentucky won its 20th, walloping Alabama 90-67. Loyola of Chicago, ranked fourth, shot 56 per cent and routed Western Michigan 107-75. Vanderbilt, No. 5, wiped out a 12-point deficit and defeated Auburn 91-76. Sixth-ranked Providence got 31 points from Jimmy Walker and downed DePaul 61-57.

Creighton snapped St. John's three-game win string, tripping the visiting New Yorkers 86-67. West Virginia, returning home after two straight road defeats, walloped Pitt 103-63 with five men in double figures and all 12 WVU players scoring. Oklahoma City also romped, whacking Loyola of New Orleans 115-82.

Texas Western had its fourth straight close call. The Miners had beaten Arizona and New Mexico in overtime and edged Colorado State by two points in the last second, before nipping Arizona State at El Paso. David

Lima, Springboro Cling To Top in Ohio Cage Poll

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lima Shawnee and Canton McKinley headed into the home stretch today still ranked Nos. 1 and 2 in the Associated Press weekly ratings of high school basketball teams.

The final poll will be announced next Tuesday and the unbeaten Indians go into the last week with a 17-0 record and a 22-point lead.

Lima mustered 195 points to McKinley's 173 with Dayton Chaminade still in third place despite losing last weekend to Dayton Dunbar.

Warren was ranked fourth followed by Toledo Libbey, Elyria, Cleveland East Tech, Wellston, Hamilton Garfield and Columbus Linden.

Wellston was a newcomer to the charmed circle and Linden also moved in replacing Columbus West and Hamilton Taft. West bowed to Columbus East 52-50 and Taft suffered a humiliating 107-81 setback to Mid-dletown.

Shawnee is the only unbeaten quintet in the Class AA top ten with Elyria having lost three times.

Once-beaten Springboro clung to the top spot in Class A despite a 79-78 loss to Waynesville last Friday. Springboro drew 125 points, only seven more than untarnished Rossford, 16-0.

Rittman, 17-0, was third, Bridgeport, 16-0 fourth, followed by Carey, Dixie, Anna, Chillicothe Flaget, Sandusky St. Marys and Nelsonville, which has lost four times, all to AA schools.

Sandusky St. Mary's, 16 - 0 crashed the elite circle for the first time as Newark Catholic, which split a pair over the weekend, tumbled out. Here's how the Associated Press selection committee rates Ohio's Class AA high school basketball teams (points on a 10,9,8, etc., basis).

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas Western, working overtime to maintain its unbeaten record, has made another advance in The Associated Press major-college basketball poll. The Miners now trail only top-ranked Kentucky and the runner-up Duke Blue Devils.

Texas Western defeated Arizona 81-72 and New Mexico 67-64, both in overtime, last week and lifted its record to 18-0. Kentucky, the only other undefeated team, whipped Florida 85-75 and Auburn 77-64 for a 19-0 mark.

Duke dropped its second game of the campaign, 94-90 to West Virginia, then recovered for victories No. 16 and 17 over North Carolina State and Virginia, respectively.

The Top Ten, with won-lost records through Feb. 12, and points:

1. Kentucky 19-0	416
2. Duke 17-2	355
3. Texas Western 18-0	301
4. Chicago Loyola 17-2	247
5. Vanderbilt 17-3	182
6. Providence 17-2	170
7. Kansas 16-3	169
8. St. Joseph's, Pa. 17-4	134
9. Nebraska 16-3	87
10. Michigan 13-5	82

When the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax pitched 27 complete games last season it was the most by a Dodger since 1924 when Burleigh Grimes and Dazy Vance both completed 30. No southpaw in the National League has pitched more complete games since 1921 when Wilber Cooper of the Pirates completed 29.

77 Hopefuls Entered in Hambletonian

DU QUOIN, Ill. —Kerry Way, crown princess of the two-year-old trotting ranks last year, heads a star-studded list of 77 hopefuls for the 1966 edition of the $150,000 Hambletonian Stake. President Don Hayes of the Du Quoin State Fair, home of the Hambletonian, made public the list of Big H eligibles Monday.

The Hambletonian will be raced for the 41st time next Aug. 31 in conjunction with the 10-day Du Quoin Fair, which traditionally includes five days of Grand Circuit harness racing.

Owned by Gainesway Farm of Clarence F. Gaines of Sherburne, N.Y. and Lexington, Ky. and bred by his son John R. Gaines of Lexington, Kerry Way was voted the nation's top two-year-old trotter of 1965 off her glistening record of 14 victories and $116,549 in purse money. The latter amount represents the most money ever accumulated by a juvenile filly in the long history of harness racing.

Kerry Way, a daughter of Star's Pride, sire of the last two Hambletonian winners, Ayres and Egyptian Candor, is one of only five fillies from the set of 77 three-year-olds kept eligible to the Hambletonian by virtue of their connections making a $250 sustaining payment last Jan. 15.

Four Ohio trotters are entered. Sam Clio of Washington C.H. has staked two, Bounty and Dukes Wild. George Conner of Columbus has entered Egyptian Song while Jim Hackett of Cincinnati has staked Speedy C.

Texas West Advances in College Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas Western, working overtime to maintain its unbeaten record, has made another advance in The Associated Press major-college basketball poll. The Miners now trail only top-ranked Kentucky and the runner-up Duke Blue Devils.

Texas Western defeated Arizona 81-72 and New Mexico 67-64, both in overtime, last week and lifted its record to 18-0. Kentucky, the only other undefeated team, whipped Florida 85-75 and Auburn 77-64 for a 19-0 mark.

Duke dropped its second game of the campaign, 94-90 to West Virginia, then recovered for victories No. 16 and 17 over North Carolina State and Virginia, respectively.

The Top Ten, with won-lost records through Feb. 12, and points:

1. Kentucky 19-0	416
2. Duke 17-2	355
3. Texas Western 18-0	301
4. Chicago Loyola 17-2	247
5. Vanderbilt 17-3	182
6. Providence 17-2	170
7. Kansas 16-3	169
8. St. Joseph's, Pa. 17-4	134
9. Nebraska 16-3	87
10. Michigan 13-5	82

Circleville Draws Whetstone In Central District Tourney

Teays Valley and Circleville are at opposite ends of the 43-team Class AA Central District Basketball tournament slated to start Feb. 24 in the Coliseum at the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

In the pairings held last night at Willard's Restaurant, Columbus, Whitehall and Teays Valley are paired in the upper bracket at 9:30 p. m. Feb. 26 while Circleville and Whetstone will meet in the last game of the lower bracket, 9:30 p. m., Mar. 2.

Whitehall has a 10-7 record for the season, as does Teays Valley.

Circleville will match its 4-12 mark against Whetstone's 1-14 record.

Wysong Wins In Phoenix By Stroke

PHOENIX Ariz. (AP)— On Monday morning Dudley Wysong's official 1966 professional golf earnings totaled zero, he still was looking for his first pro victory and he was wondering how he'd ever get into the field for the $200,000 Carling Open.

Today he's $9,000 richer, has joined the winners' fraternity and is assured of a trip to England for the big-money Carling event Aug. 27-Sept. 3.

Wysong, a determined 26-year-old from Casper, Wyo., stormed from six strokes off the pace with a five-under-par 66 Monday to catch veteran Gardner Dickinson Jr. and vin the 60,000 Phoenix Open. The victory qualified him for the Carling.

Wysong had rounds of 73-69-70-66 for a six-under-par 278 on the 6,756-yard Phoenix Country Club course, a par 36-3571 lay-out which was deluged by rains in the early going but was baked by the warm Arizona sun in the final rounds.

Dickinson, who shot 66-69-71-73, finished a stroke back at 279 and pocketed second-place money of $5,000. Gene Littler, who fashioned 17 pars and a birdie into a closing 70, finished at 280 and picked up $4,000 for third.

UofC Taps Lawrence As Assistant Coach

CINCINNATI (AP) — Don Lawrence, a former Notre Dame tackle who served as a line coach at Kansas State University the last two years, today was appointed an assistant football coach at the University of Cincinnati.

Lawrence, 28, will replace Dick MacPherson who joined the staff of the University of Maryland. A native Ohioan, Lawrence is a graduate of Cleveland Cathedral Latin High School.

Rick Barry, freshman with the San Francisco Warriors basketball team, played Little League baseball in Roselle Park, N. J. as was possible in the tournament.

He pointed out that although Whetstone's record was no true indication of the quality of the team, that the Red and Black should be fairly equally matched.

"And I'm not afraid of Hartley or Reynoldsburg," Hill said. The winner of the Tiger-Whetstone tilt will face the winner of the Reynoldsburg-Hartley tilt or Mar. 5.

The Circleville coaching staff will have ample opportunity to point toward the tilt after the regular season ends this weekend.

Should Teays Valley pass its first hurdle in tournament play, the Vikings will be pitted on Mar. 7 against winner of the Hamilton Twp.-Newark game.

And none of the coaches at the meeting gave Hamilton even an outside chance of upsetting perennial favorite Newark in the tournament.

EIGHT teams were seeded at the tournament drawing. They are, in order of their seeding: Linden McKinley, West, East, Pleasant View, Upper Arlington, Newark, Grove City and Bishop Hartley.

Washington C. H., the only other team in the South Central Ohio League represented in the Central District, will play Columbus South, last year's state champion 8 p. m. Feb. 25.

Attending the pairings from Circleville were Richard Snouffer, a member of the district board, and Circleville faculty manager Paul Sarchet.

Representing Teays Valley were Russell Gregg, head coach, Benis Lutz, executive head, Jack Strapp, reserve coach and Marlon Waites.

Circleville, Westfall in Frosh Tourney

Freshmen basketball teams from Circleville and Westfall are scheduled to compete in the tournament at Reynoldsburg Junior High School, 1482 Jackson St., Reynoldsburg.

The event is slated to get under way today with games tomorrow, Friday and Saturday. Circleville plays Reynoldsburg, 5:30 p. m., tomorrow.

Other teams in the event are Indianola, Whitehall, Pickerington, Groveport, Watkins Memorial.

Indiana Routs Buckeyes in Second Half

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

That second half magic works the other way on the road, and Ohio State's Jekyll-and-Hyde basketball team has an 81-61 defeat at Indiana to prove it, once again.

In their last two home games, whiz-bang Buckeye second half drives knocked off Wisconsin and Purdue. In their last two away set-tos, Illinois and then Indiana Monday night put Ohio State to rout after intermission.

The latest reversal, dropping the Bucks into a sixth place tie with the Hoosiers and Northwestern at 3-5 in the Big Ten, came after Ohio State led 17-13 midway in the first half and trailed only 35-29 at the break.

Bob Dove had a good night for OSU with 22 points and Bill Hosket contributed 15 while six Hoosiers scored in double digits. OSU's stellar shooter, Ron Sepb, picked up only two points before fouling out.

All Ohio collegiate play Monday night was interstate, and the other four Ohio teams broke even. Central State clipped Kentucky State 68-58 and Malone dumped Alliance (Pa.) 86-81, but Tennessee State whipped Youngstown 67-52 in a battle of AP small college Top Ten members and Quantico Marines edged Findlay 83-81.

Sandy Koufax, World Series hero for the Los Angeles Dodgers, allowed only 25 home runs in 335 2-3rd innings during 1965.

Cage Freeze Fails To Halt Blue Devils

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
South Carolina gave Duke the cold shoulder on Valentine's night but it didn't break the Blue Devils' hearts this time.

The Gamecocks, who had stunned second-ranked Duke last December, tried a freeze at Durham, N.C., that must have had Dan Cupid shivering Monday night but the Blue Devils hung on for a 41-38 Atlantic Coast Conference victory.

Duke, with high-scorer Bob Verga sitting out his second straight game for disciplinary reasons, shot into a 29-20 lead with a minute gone in the second half when South Carolina put on the stall.

The Gamecocks' slowdown and some erratic shooting by Duke narrowed the lead to 34-31 with 4 1/2 minutes to play. But Steve Gaencadak hit two long jumpers and Jack Marin sank three free throws that kept the Blue Devils on top.

"We couldn't run with them," reasoned South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire, defending his freeze. "It was our one chance."

South Carolina's slowdown looked like a fast break compared to the iceberg Midwestern and LeTourneau Tech, two small Texas schools, exchanged.

Midwestern scored the first two baskets of the game and it was 4-2 when LeTourneau, which had lost 82-56 the first time the two teams met, went into a stall with 16:50 left in the first half. Midwestern led 7-6 at the half.

The teams each managed one basket in the second half with the first points coming after 13 1/2 minutes of stalling. The final score was Midwestern 9, LeTourneau 8 and the best news came after the final gun.

The two schools decided they won't play each other anymore.

The nation's top six teams in The Associated Press poll all played and won with Duke and third-ranked Texas Western getting the closest calls. The Miners edged Arizona State 69-67 despite 30 points by the losers' Freddie Lewis.

Top-ranked Kentucky won its 20th, walloping Alabama 90-67. Loyola of Chicago, ranked fourth, shot 56 per cent and routed Western Michigan 107-75. Vanderbilt, No. 5, wiped out a 12-point deficit and defeated Auburn 91-76. Sixth-ranked Providence got 31 points from Jimmy Walker and downed DePaul 61-57.

Creighton snapped St. John's three-game win string, tripping the visiting New Yorkers 86-67. West Virginia, returning home after two straight road defeats, walloped Pitt 103-63 with five men in double figures and all 12 WVU players scoring. Oklahoma City also romped, whacking Loyola of New Orleans 115-82.

Texas Western had its fourth straight close call. The Miners had beaten Arizona and New Mexico in overtime and edged the Colorado State by two points in the last second, before nipping Arizona State at El Paso. David

Lima, Springboro Cling To Top in Ohio Cage Poll

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lima Shawnee and Canton McKinley headed into the home stretch today still ranked Nos. 1 and 2 in the Associated Press weekly ratings of high school basketball teams.

The final poll will be announced next Tuesday and the unbeaten Indians go into the last week with a 17-0 record and a 22-point lead.

Lima mustered 195 points to McKinley's 173 with Dayton Chaminade still in third place despite losing last weekend to Dayton Dunbar.

Warren was ranked fourth followed by Toledo Libbey, Elyria, Cleveland East Tech, Wellston, Hamilton Garfield and Columbus Linden.

Wellston was a newcomer to the charmed circle and Linden also moved in replacing Columbus West and Hamilton Taft. West bowed to Columbus East 52-50 and Taft suffered a humiliating 107-81 setback to Mid-dletown.

Shawnee is the only unbeaten quintet in the Class AA top ten with Elyria having lost three times.

Once-beaten Springboro clung to the top spot in Class A despite a 79-78 loss to Waynesville last Friday. Springboro drew 125 points, only seven more than untarnished Rossford, 16-0.

Rittman, 17-0, was third, Bridgeport, 16-0 fourth, followed by Carey, Dixie, Anna, Chillicothe Flaget, Sandusky St. Marys and Nelsonville, which has lost four times, all to AA schools.

Sandusky St. Mary's, 16 - 0 crashed the elite circle for the first time as Newark Catholic, which split a pair over the weekend, tumbled out. Here's how the Associated Press selection committee rates Ohio's Class AA high school basketball teams (points on a 10,9,8, etc., basis).

77 Hopetuls Entered in Hambletonian

DU QUOIN, Ill. —Kerry Way, crown princess of the two-year-old trotting ranks last year, heads a star-studded list of 77 hopefuls for the 1966 edition of the $150,000 Hambletonian Stake. President Don Hayes of the Du Quoin State Fair, home of the Hambletonian, made public the list of Big H eligibles Monday.

The Hambletonian will be raced for the 41st time next Aug. 31 in conjunction with the 10-day Du Quoin Fair, which traditionally includes five days of Grand Circuit harness racing.

Owned by Gainesway Farm of Clarence F. Gaines of Sherburne, N.Y. and Lexington, Ky. and bred by his son John R. Gaines of Lexington, Kerry Way was voted the nation's top two-year-old trotter of 1965 off her glistening record of 14 victories and $116,549 in purse money. The latter amount represents the most money ever accumulated by a juvenile filly in the long history of harness racing.

Kerry Way, a daughter of Star's Pride, sire of the last two Hambletonian winners, Ayres and Egyptian Candor, is one of only five fillies from the set of 77 three-year-olds kept eligible to the Hambletonian by virtue of their connections making a 2850 sustaining payment last Jan. 15.

Four Ohio trotters are entered. Sam Coil of Washington C.H. has staked two, Bounty and Duces Wild. George Conner of Columbus has entered Egyptian Song while Jim Hackett of Cincinnati has staked Speedy C.

Texas West Advances in College Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Texas Western, working overtime to maintain its unbeaten record, has made another advance in The Associated Press major-college basketball poll. The Miners now trail only top-ranked Kentucky and the runner-up Duke Blue Devils.

Texas Western defeated Arizona 81-72 and New Mexico 67-64, both in overtime, last week and lifted its record to 18-0. Kentucky, the only other undefeated team, whipped Florida 85-75 and Auburn 77-64 for a 19-0 mark.

Duke dropped its second game of the campaign, 94-90 to West Virginia, then recovered for victories No. 16 and 17 over North Carolina State and Virginia, respectively.

The Top Ten, with won-lost records through Feb. 12, and points:

1. Kentucky 19-0	418
2. Duke 17-2	355
3. Texas Western 18-0	301
4. Chicago Loyola 17-2	247
5. Vanderbilt 17-3	182

Wilt Becomes All-Time Top Scorer

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — This was the big one. Wilt Chamberlain wanted most. And now he's got it — all-time leading scorer in the National Basketball Association.

"Sure, this has to be the big one for me and it is," the 7-foot-1 Philadelphia 76ers ace said Monday night after collecting 41 points to break the career mark set by the now-retired Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks.

Wilt's scoring spurge powered the 76ers past the Detroit Pistons 149-123 and spiraled Chamberlain's seven-year NBA total to 20,884, four over Pettit's standard.

In the only other game played, Dick Barnett scored 32 points in sparking the New York Knicks to a 138-125 victory over the San Francisco Warriors.

"This means more to me than anything, even more than scoring 100 points," Wilt said, referring to his 100-point performance against New York in a game four years ago.

"The scorers are getting better and better and I think someone will score 100 points, or maybe more," he said. "But this one may stick around for a while. And this means a lot because it means a sustained performance over a long time. Yep, I really wanted this."

Before some 5,000 fans in the Charleston Civic Center he played the role of playmaker in the first half and tallied only 10 points as Philadelphia ran up a 70-51 margin.

"That was the way it was supposed to be," Wilt said. "We looked real bad in our last games and we wanted to shake the offense loose. This was the best way to do it but it meant I wasn't going to do much scoring."

"Oh, sure! I went after the record when we were way out front in the last quarter and the guys started to move the ball to me," Wilt said.

He went into the last 12 minutes with 22 points and then they started to come furiously. He dropped in six field goals and a free throw and the crowd started to chant, "give it to Wilt."

A stuff shot with 2:46 remaining gave him 37 points to tie Pettit's record and a free throw with one minute and 32 seconds left gave him the record.

Cost of Money May Be Boosted

NEW YORK (AP) — As the business boom rounds out its fifth year the demand for loans is rising and with it the pressure for still higher interest rates.

Many in the banking field feel that another hike in the cost of borrowing isn't too far off. Involved would be consumers, business firms, buyers of new homes.

Put the other way around, rewards for savers and returns to lenders would be rising further. This runs all the way from the interest payments on U. S. savings bonds and bank savings accounts to the yield enjoyed by suppliers of funds for mortgages or for business expansion.

The administration is expected to oppose this, or to delay it as long as possible. It prefers money to be plentiful and fairly cheap to keep the economy expanding through a sixth straight year.

Some banks already are raising again the interest they will pay on large deposits tied up for six months or more.

On the other side of the coin, the Federal Housing Administration has just raised the interest charged on mortgages it insures. Formerly this cost 5 1/2 per cent. Now it costs 5 3/4 per cent. Lenders of conventional mortgages unbacked by the FHA get an average of 6 per cent. The building industry is debating whether interest increases all along the line are in prospect.

Banks borrowing from the Federal Reserve have been paying 4 1/2 per cent since early December, when the cost went up by 1/2 per cent. Dr. Roy L. Reiersen, senior vice president, Bankers Trust Company, New York, predicts this soon will be raised still higher. Other banks express the same belief privately.

The increase in the discount rate in December brought a rebuke from Washington but was quickly followed by an identical 1/2 per cent rise in the prime rate charged by the banks to their largest customers with the best credit rating. It is now 5 per cent. Dr. Reiersen thinks it will go up again. That would mean that the great volume of bank loans, always higher than the prime rate, will be more costly, too.

The Federal Reserve since December has allowed banks to charge 5 1/2 per cent on time deposits, but only 4 per cent on regular savings accounts. Few banks will pay that much on time deposits yet, but several have raised their interest rates close to it.

The reason banks and other lenders are willing to pay savers more these days is that the demand for loans has risen so high — and the interest that can be earned on bank loans has gone up so much, too — that lenders are competing for funds. To do that they lure savers with higher rewards.

Predictions that the demand for funds will go on growing — and that interest rates will keep in step — are based on the majority view in financial circles that the economic upswing is sure to continue through 1966.

Spending for the Viet Nam war will stimulate the economic growth. And if this should slacken, bankers feel that the spending for Great Society programs would be quickly increased.

They add that any real let down in the economy's pace would inspire the administration to seek new tax cuts and bigger federal deficits to revive the boom.

Plans Mapped To Organize Circleville Bowling Assn.

Men bowlers in the Circleville area will meet Feb. 27 in the Fraternal Order of Eagles Lodge to form a local bowling association, it was announced today by Kenneth E. Mace, secretary of the Lancaster Bowling Assn.

The meeting will start at 2 p. m. Mace pointed out there will be nominations and election of officers and the adoption of major by-laws for the new association.

The new bowling organization will become active at the beginning of the 1966-67 season.

A move to form a Circleville Bowling Assn. was initiated in April of last year when Mace corresponded with the American Bowling Congress requesting permission to proceed with organization of the local bowlers.

AN ANSWER to Mace's request pointed out that in the event such a move was desirable to bowlers of both the Circleville area and the Lancaster Bowling Assn., the situation would be permissible.

Local bowlers are presently affiliated with the Lancaster group and participate in its annual tournament.

The distance between the two communities creates a problem for officers of the league, particularly during annual tournaments, according to Mace.

Atlanta '11' Eyes Players

NFL Offers List Of Veteran Men

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The new Atlanta Falcons get their first look today at the list of veteran players their 14 National Football League brethren will make available.

Falcons owner Rankin Smith, who paid a reported $5 million for the franchise, and Norb Hecker, his coach, both called the stocking plan "very fair." They will have about 24 hours to make known their 42 picks.

The NFL owners argued and labored for 5 1/2 hours Monday afternoon and evening before devising a formula for stocking the baby franchise with veterans.

"I think it is a better plan than when Dallas and Minnesota were stocked," said Commissioner Pete Rozelle, "because of the number available, the draft and the players already signed."

Using the 40-man player rosters that opened the 1965 season as a base, the clubs are allowed to freeze 29 players. Atlanta then takes one of the remaining 11 from each of the 14 teams. The teams then freeze two more players and Atlanta selects two more of the eight remaining on each list.

At the end of the process the Falcons will have 42 men with NFL experience in 1965 plus 32 rookies and 19 veteran free agents already signed. Atlanta had first and last picks in each of the first five rounds of the college draft last November.

The original 40-man rosters will include any players who were removed later because of injuries but still remained under control of the club. Players who started the season and then were traded or transferred on waivers will not be on the list.

However, each list will contain 40 names, including the men who replaced traded or waived players. The only club that didn't make a change was Green Bay.

When the Falcons decide they are interested in a player who is eligible for selection they will be given detailed reports on military status, physical condition and contractual data by the team that owns his contract. Once selected a player cannot be traded back to his old team for two years.

The Atlanta club also will be granted a number of special privileges. They can go to training camp at any date desired and they do not have to adhere to the 60-man training camp limit.

To Foil Plop, It's Best To Squop Wink

WATERLOO, Ont. (AP) — "If you squop my wink, it'll be a difficult squidge to score a plop."

Sound strange? Well it's not a bit strange to a group of students at the University of Waterloo who have formed a tiddly-wink club and claim the Canadian championship for the game.

Why the Canadian championship?

"You see, there was no other club to challenge us," says Col. McLeod, organizer of the club which now boasts more than 80 players. "Some came to laugh, but stayed to play."

The ultimate goal is to challenge Harvard University next month for the North American "wink" title and then challenge Oxford University for the world title.

Eight members who really know their tiddlies—or winks—will be chosen to play the matches, but McLeod, a graduate student from the University of Aberdeen, says members are having trouble with their "squops."

"To squop," he explains, "is to cover your opponent's wink with your wink and prevent him from plopping or snapping it in to a cup. Then of course, you must squidge your own wink and land it in the cup."

In addition to his four no-hit, no-run games the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax has also pitched a pair of one-hit and eight two-hitters.

It's desirable to prevent Chinese military power from expanding across the face of Asia. I don't regard that as the principal challenge that China presents to the world today.

"The greatest danger will come from a continuance of a policy that attempts to isolate China diplomatically from contacts either with ourselves or other great powers. I personally think this is a dangerous and ill-advised course..."

"The course we're following is one that is calculated to bring out the worst features of the Chinese government. If we decide on a policy of containment it should be a broadly based policy that doesn't rely excessively on military power."

"China is afraid of American retaliation. I do not doubt for an instant that the Chinese have, of course, objectives in Southeast Asia. They may beyond a certain point intervene in Viet Nam. But I don't quite think that the Chinese are ready at the moment to do this."

Roche: "I don't know of any serious observer of the war in Viet Nam who has argued that this is a Chinese operation. I know a number of people who believe that what you're dealing with here is an indigenous North Vietnamese Communist imperialism, which would be backed by the Chinese, presumably if the United States expanded the war on the ground."

"At the moment the problem of Chinese power is a remote problem, probably 10 to 15 years away. In the meantime, all kinds of things can happen. The bureaucratic complexion of the Chinese government can change. There are infinite possibilities for the possibility of self-destruction on the part of the Chinese. The Communists are better at making big mistakes than we are so we should stick to making small mistakes and let them make the big mistakes. We need a policy of playing for time and holding on."

"I don't think the possibility of China entering Viet Nam is imminent unless we should invade North Viet Nam, which I think at the moment is about as a remote a contingency as I can conceive."

Dems Shelve Endorsements

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic rivals in Ohio's May 3 primary for statewide office nominations are on their own. The party organization decided Monday to make no endorsements.

Among the gainers from the 18-15 Democratic State Committee vote for an "open" primary are McIlwain and McElroy. State Rep. Harry H. McIlwain of Cincinnati, as he put it, gets "a start on an even keel with my opponent"—State Sen. Frazier Reams Jr. of Toledo—in the gubernatorial primary.

And former Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy of Cleveland gets the same break, if it amounts to that, in his attorney general nomination contest with U. S. Rep. Robert E. Sweeney, his onetime aide.

Columbiana County Democratic Chairman Don Gosney led a drive within the state committee to deprive all candidates of official party backing in the primary.

State Chairman William L. Coleman furnished news at the gathering when he emerged with what he said was a "100 per cent vote of confidence" to serve out his term although he is a candidate for lieutenant governor.

But he declared that when that term is up in May, after a new state committee is elected in the primary, under no circumstances will he seek re-election as chairman.

That presumably will give the gubernatorial nominee, be he Reams or McIlwain, a chance

'Grand Empress' of Klan Denies Assassination Plot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "Grand Empress" of the National Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in Ohio has denied plotting to kill the President and vice president and blow up the White House.

Eloise Witte, 40, a plumpish blonde housewife from Cincinnati, Ohio, testified at House Committee on Un-American Activities hearings on the Klan in Ohio that she had never even discussed such plots.

A previous witness, Daniel Wagner, 19, in a letter had detailed conversations he said he had had with Mrs. Witte about plots of violence.

Mrs. Witte's testimony came as the committee neared the end of its quizzing of witnesses about the Klan in Ohio.

A committee source indicated also that there will be a break of several days before the group takes concluding public testimony on its investigation of the Ku Klux Klan.

At one point in Mrs. Witte's testimony, her answers prompted Rep. Joe Pool, D-Tex., to shout, "Somebody's committing perjury in this hearing and the transcript will show it."

The remarks were made as Mrs. Witte denied Wagner's allegations about the schemes.

In these plots, described by Mrs. Witte as ridiculous, Wagner said several persons were to be eliminated. They included the President and vice president, "by blowing up the White House;" civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.; Mrs. Witte's husband and William Hugh Morris of Buchanan, Ga., emperor of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

"I didn't know anybody could be such a kook," Mrs. Witte said was her reaction to the Wagner statements.

Mrs. Witte said Wagner had telephoned her one Saturday and when "my daughter brought him in with the Sunday paper the next morning he sat on my porch for two hours." She said she felt sorry for Wagner because "he so desperately wanted to belong" and "he told me his mother had deserted him as a baby."

She said she thought Wagner is emotionally disturbed but had believed him to be "an upright boy" at first, with an honorable Army discharge.

Columbus, Ohio, police at the hearings here have said armed robbery charges are pending in Columbus against Wagner, a Baltimore native. Wagner testified he had received an undesirable discharge from the Army.

Ham, Bean Supper Planned by Auxiliary

MOM'S IN HOT WATER ...SINCE SHE GOT HER NEW FLAME

And so's Dad. And so are all the kids. And they love it. The whole family's in hot water because Mom's new flame is a modern, durable Gas water heater. You never know it's around. You never give it a thought. And that's the way it should be. After all, the only time most folks ever think of their water heater is when they run out of hot water. And with a dependable, family-rated Gas water heater, it never happens.

With a modern Gas water heater there are no infuriating waits between baths while a poky flameless water heater recovers from the shock of delivering a tub-full of hot water. Only a Gas water heater, with its unequalled quick recovery, is always ready to deliver all the hot water a modern family needs. With a modern Gas water heater, you'll all be in hot water . . . and you'll love it. Especially when you think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.
